GIRL, 11, HELD IN 4 KILLINGS

11-Year-Old Killer—Chloe Davis, 11, today confessed to Los Angeles police that she had killed her mother and baby brothers . . . persisted that her mother had killed her two sisters. The girl, shown being bandaged, was trapped by lies she told after the four slayings.

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, April 5—The war aim of the Anglo-French allies is to divide the spoils of victory and slice Germany and Italy "back into the map of the middle ages."

That was the charge pressed home by every possible means by German authorities today as they pounded at the photograph, published by the French periodical L'Illustration, which showed American Undersecretary Sumner Welles seated in the Paris office of French Premier Paul Reynaud before a map picturing the boundaries of Germany considerably reduced.

(Editor's note: The French have contended that the boundary lines shown on the map were the result of a poor retouching job. In Washington Welles branded as "fantastic nonsense" all reports that he was shown a map outlining allied war aims while conversing with Reynaud in Paris.)

The German public was warned that the alternative to a victory by the Reich over Britain and France would be an allied division of the spoils with dismemberment of Germany and Italy as now constituted.

SAY WELLES DUPED
It appeared that official German anger against Welles, who yesterday was accused of "bad taste" by an official German spokesman, had cooled somewhat overnight.

Today the official attitude was that the French "victimized" Welles during his European fact-finding tour as part of an allied campaign allegedly designed to convince the British and French

WILLKIE LASHES NEW DEAL FOR CREATING DEPRESSION

Politicians, who brewed a kind of witch's broth of horror and smeared it all over American enterprise, have created a government-made depression, Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern Corp., told a Boston Chamber of Commerce audience today.

The utility executive, who has said he would accept the Republican presidential nomination if it were offered him, declared the "dark legend" fathered by sinister rumors and constant abuse has continued for eight years and has destroyed the confidence of people in business.

"By telling us that American business was corrupt," said Willkie, "those who make their living out of government were able to get approval for drastic legislation controlling our business enterprise."

CITES BUSINESS DECLINE

"By asserting that it was incapable they were able to enact legislation enormously extending the authority of government to carry on economic activities."

This, Willkie said, has made it impossible for the American businessman to obtain capital for his enterprises and created "a government-made depression."

In the last eight years, he pointed out, industrial production, factory payrolls, national income, new construction and new corporate financing have declined.

These unwelcome economic trends Willkie compared with undesirable increases in government payrolls, taxes, spending, and debt, which he asserted also resulted from government domination.

INDUSTRY "WHIPPING BOY"

Willkie reminded his audience that in the middle ages royal princes drafted other boys, known as "whipping boys," to receive punishment for their offenses, saying: "American industry has become the 'whipping boy' of today."

Political abuse, he said, had reached incredible proportions, pointing out:

"The very term 'businessman,' which had been honored in this country for more

May Unite Parliaments For Both War and Peace

LONDON, April 5 (AP)—The possibility of a joint Parliament to cope with growing British-French unity was mentioned today as the Allies drove forward with plans to buy up German markets they cannot bottle up by blockade.

A front page story in the Daily Mail said the idea of a British-French Parliament to deal with broad questions of common concern already had been taken up but that it was still in a visionary stage.

The newspaper, however, said discussions were understood to have taken place here and in Paris to attain the most intimate co-operation between the Allies to fuse them "into one military and economic force, not only during the war but also when peace comes."

UNITED FORCE FOR PEACE

The objective, it said, is a permanent partnership "which would make the two great empires so powerful a force for peace that no aggressor would dare challenge it."

Georges Monnet, France's new minister of blockade, was due here today to confer with Ronald H. Cross, British minister of economic warfare, as the two nations united themselves even more closely in economics and culture.

The Board of Trade disclosed it had reciprocated on increased facilities for importing the products of each other's empires. Education experts studied ways of teaching French to British children and English to French children.

In secret session next Thursday, the House of Commons will debate methods of plugging leaks in the blockade of Germany which Prime Minister Chamberlain said yesterday would "drain the lifeblood out of our enemy."

Financial circles said that "ENCO"—the official abbreviation for the English Commercial Corporation, Ltd.—Britain's newest blockade weapon, would be a bold effort to recover trade lost to the Germans in the past 20 years by selling British products to southeastern Europe and by buying up

NORSE SHIP BOMBED, 2 HURT

OSLO, Norway, April 5 (AP)—Bombed eight times by German planes, the Norwegian passenger ship Mira, with two of its 107 passengers slightly injured, arrived today from Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The two were injured by bomb splinters, other passengers reported. The Mira, an 1152-ton ship, sailed in a British convoy.

Passengers said the first bombing occurred shortly after the trip started, and one German plane was believed to have fallen during this raid.

"The following day we were attacked anew," a passenger said. "A violent battle followed and another plane seemed to fall. Later that same day we were attacked again."

The Germans had several planes in this attack and came at us in pairs. Three bombs were thrown at the ship and exploded about 12 feet away. Nobody was hurt.

"Exactly 35 minutes later five bombs were showered on us. All the passengers were standing on the deck ready to go into lifeboats and had no protection against the attack."

"The bombs rained on all sides of the ship and several of them exploded close to us."

Two passengers were hit by splinters. We could see that a British destroyer hit one of the German planes."

LISBON, April 5 (AP)—The Portuguese steamer Carvalho Aragua reported today by wireless she had found an 8000-ton French tanker abandoned and drifting after apparently being torpedoed in the Atlantic, off the Azores, and was towing the vessel to Lisbon.

Girl, 11, Begs Beer; Tells of 4 Murders

LOS ANGELES, April 5 (AP)—Chloe Davis, 11, described by an amazed psychiatrist as "the cruellest-blooded, coolest individual I ever met," told police today with a mixture of slang that she beat to death her mother and baby brother, but insisted the fatal bludgeoning of two younger sisters was done previously by her mother.

Interrupting only to demand bottled beer and lemon pie, the 80-pound, strong-armed girl led questioning officers through conflicting versions during which she referred to her grocery manager father as "nuts" and her anemic mother as a believer in "demons."

Police Capt. Edgar Edwards expressed belief the girl, an avid book reader with the imaginative mind of a 16-year-old, alone was responsible for the deaths of Mrs. Lolita Bjorkman Davis, 36; Daphne, 16; Deborah Ann, seven, and Marquita (Mark), three, in the blood-spotted Davis home in southwest Los Angeles yesterday.

HER MURDER PICTURE

The girl's latest story was that her mother killed the little girls, then tried to burn herself on a mattress but failed and Chloe "conked" the woman with a claw hammer at the mother's request. After that, the girl said, she beat her moaning brother to death.

The flippant, sixth-grade youngster was held on suspicion of murder after she unhesitatingly led officers through the blood-splattered rooms.

FACE LIKE ANGEL'S

Capt. Edwards said he anticipated an early solution of the brutal death drama, with helpful questioning of the girl by her father, Barton Edwards, 51, who moved here with his family five years ago from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Once during the questioning, the

NET STAR TELLS OF HER ROMANCE

On a tennis court—it's love! Attractive Miss Rosamond Newton, author, Junior League socialite and erstwhile topnotcher among the nation's women tennis stars, was sure of that today.

For it was on a tennis court that she first met Edward Nicholl Fenno, 65-year-old socially prominent son of the late Edward Fenno, millionaire wool merchant.

GRAND MAN, SHE SAYS

In a gay mood, despite a broken leg, the young (somewhere in her early thirties, she said) bride-to-be talked about her "December-May" romance.

But trained as she is in the art of using the printed word, Miss Newton frankly confessed herself unable to explain the romance fully.

"He's the grandest man I know," she said happily.

"You can't explain those things—they just happen. He is very popular with the men."

Here, the reporter interrupted: "How about the women?"

Laughing heartily, Miss Newton replied:

WON MANY HONORS

Fenno, she said, shares her interest in tennis, although she gave up actual tournament play four years ago after winning many New England and national honors.

"He doesn't seem old, and he feels young and takes part in many activities," said Miss Newton.

Miss Newton wasn't sure when the marriage would take place, but she indicated it would be just as soon as her leg mends. She broke her leg last January when a piece of ice gave way under her foot.

Miss Newton, the daughter of Mrs. Adeline Stuart Newton of 24 Euston st., Brookline, was to have been married five years ago to Howland Francis of Brookline. With plans all arranged, Francis became ill with pneumonia, and died.

SEE HAPPY BRIDAL

Her introduction to Fenno came in the summer of 1938 during a tennis match, she said. A year later, she met him at Falmouth, where she lived, and since that time they have seen each other regularly, she added.

"We're perfectly happy, and I know our marriage is going to be a happy one," Miss Newton said.

Fenno for many years has lived with his brother, Henry Bradlee Fenno, in Beacon st. His sister, Mrs. Arthur Bell, also is prominent in Boston society.

Miss Newton is staying at the residence of the socially prominent Mrs. Geoffrey G. Whitney in Milton.

THOUSANDS LATE IN BIG 'L' TIEUP

One of the worst trolley traffic tieups in recent years came today at the height of the morning rush hour when an inbound reservoir three-car train split a switch at the crossover just north of Boylston st. subway station.

For more than two hours office and store-bound workers struggled to reach their destinations, while the Elevated put on emergency buses in an attempt to take care of the thousands who found their transportation halted.

More than 4000 commuters milled in and around Massachusetts station during the tieup and long after the Elevated began running buses from the station to Park st.

Park st. station was jammed with others attempting to ride south. Subway stations in between were crowded at first, and then almost deserted, as the impatient commuters made their way to the street, and either walked in town or took taxis and buses.

And as they walked their faces showed plainly that they were becoming more and more angry in the ratio of distance and their weariness.

Other pictures were afforded at corner stores, cafes and taverns, where long lines waited to use telephones and call places of employment with explanations of why they would be late—and would be later.

At City Hall, so many employees were delayed in getting to work, the daily routine in the early hours was badly crippled.

From Kenmore sq., looking west in Commonwealth ave., it was as if the ball game had just ended. Thousands were trudging toward town, on the sidewalks and in the street, while the more hopeful, young and old, tried thumbing motorists.

Two hours after the trolley train was derailed, the tieup was still holding on the "loop" line through Park st., the line that carries the bulk of commuter traffic.

About 80 passengers were aboard the three-car train when the forward trucks of the first car derailed at the crossover. Motorman Daniel King operated the train.

The derailment blocked both north-bound rails, but a wrecking crew soon had the through line to North Station and Lechmere cleared.

It was the continuous blocking of the loop line that caused the trouble, however, because no cars could proceed beyond Boylston st. to make the loop and start back at Park st.

INDICT BLACK SPADE ON 7 COUNTS

Another trump was played today by police against Black Spade Har-eld W. Hawbolt when they obtained Suffolk County Grand Jury indictments charging him with three counts of robbery and four of kidnaping.

It took an hour and 10 minutes for police to detail their evidence before the jury, under direction of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley and his aide, Garrett J. Byrne.

Sergt. William J. Harrow of the police headquarters special service squad, who was responsible for the nabbing of 31-year-old Hawbolt, furnished the testimony with four of his detectives.

WARRANTS SERVED

The indictments were turned over to superior court and then to Court Clerk William M. Preamble of the criminal division, who made out the warrants.

Then Sergt. Harrow, receiving them from Police Inspector Martin Conroy, took the warrants to the House of Detention and served them formally on the Black Spade.

The probability is that with more than one felony count against him, Hawbolt will not be arraigned on the indictments in superior court until tomorrow.

ROBBERIES CHARGED

Yesterday the youth was identified in a police headquarters lineup by several holdup victims, and one victim young Hawbolt personally aided in making the identification.

The indictments charged the Black Spade with kidnaping Gerald Sullivan, Beattie Sullivan, Edward Gurley and Ralph Dudley.

Robbery charges included that of Gerald Sullivan of $18, Forrest White of 90 cents and Harold C. Albano of $2 and larceny of his auto. All with the aid of a dagger. Four no-bills were also returned against the Black Spade.

SHIP HULKS DOOMED

Blamed for the deaths of two children, three ship hulks will be removed soon by Nicholas L. Powers, a Boston carpenter, State Public Works Commr. John W. Best said today. A contract for removal of the hulks at a cost of $3000 was awarded to Powers.

Beer, Lost Pup Net Her $85 Fines

Her lost dog, dialike of Harvard students and three drinks of beer all played a part in the trial of Beverly Sherwood, 33, of Beacon st., in Brighton court today on charges growing out of an automobile accident.

Shea pleaded guilty findings on charges of drunkenness, driving under the influence and driving so as to endanger. Judge Harry C. Fabian imposed fines of $85.

James H. Grover, a Harvard senior, testified the woman was driving on the left side of Soldiers Field rd., on March 29, and after he had tried to dodge her car, unsuccessfully, they had gotten together to swap licenses when along came officer William Gibson of the Metropolitan police.

Gibson testified that when he asked her to step out of Grover's car she staggered and admitted having had three drinks of beer. "She said she didn't like Harvard students anyway," Gibson testified.

Atty. Richard Gerold, representing Beverly Sherwood, objected to Gibson's statement, leading Judge Babayan to remark that her opinions didn't necessarily throw any light on her condition.

Officer Gibson replied he was trying to show how irrational her conversation was at the time.

She further said, Gibson testified, that she was all upset over her lost dog.

DAUGHTER OF U.S. ENVOY TO JOIN WAR

NEW YORK, April 5—Learning to drive an ambulance is tough on nail polish.

This confession was made today by Beatrice Phillips, lovely blonde daughter of the American ambasador to Italy, as she prepared to sail for Europe where she will volunteer her services to the Allies.

Miss Phillips, popular in the younger sets of both Boston and Washington, has been in training several weeks for her big adventure.

For a long time even her best friends didn't know what she was up to.

Then one day recently in Washington another deb asked Beatrice why she had been missing so many parties.

"Why, I've been learning to change tires," Beatrice confided. "Where and what on earth for?" the friend inquired.

"I'm going to drive an ambulance in France," Beatrice explained. "I've been practicing changing tires at a garage where we used to keep our cars. I can use a jack and a lug wrench. It's a little hard on nail polish, but I don't care."

Miss Phillips likewise said she had been taking a first aid course at the American Red Cross headquarters in Washington.

She will visit her parents in Rome before going on to Paris, France. In France she will don a uniform and drive an ambulance for the American Friends of France, organized by Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan, the financier.

The widely traveled daughter of the diplomat is looking forward to her war service even if she will

HER CAB FARE $65 IN HUB DEATH RACE

Fare—a neat $65.

Mrs. Clark Smith, who went by cab from Boston to New York, paid that for her trip, William Gedick revealed today.

Gedick, the Somerville Independent cab driver who made the journey, also asserted that during the course of the six-and-a-half hour ride, Mrs. Smith informed him her home was in Maine and that her husband was a Washington government official.

RACE WITH DEATH

Back in his own house in Upland pk., Somerville, Gedick said:

"This woman called me at 2 a. m. yesterday and told me her husband was dying and she had to get to him in Washington immediately, so I drove her to the airport.

"When she found she couldn't get a plane, she told me to drive her to New York, and I did.

"On the way she explained her husband was a government official and they live somewhere in Maine. She said she got a Maine state police teletype message that he was dying and she started to drive with her father and mother in her car to Washington."

In Somerville, he said Mrs. Clark told him, the strain proved too much for her and she was anxious to make time.

STORM GROUNDS PLANES

Her mother and father went to a hotel, later to return to Maine, and she called the cab.

"It snowed heavily all the way down to New York," Gedick said.

He took Mrs. Clark first to LaGuardia Municipal Airport in New York, he said, and when it was learned planes there were grounded, took her to the Pennsylvania railroad station.

"Then I got a night's sleep and came back," he explained. "The fare was one of the biggest ever—$65. But it was worth it, to both of us."

Frankfurter Bridal Couple Face Penalty

By failing to file a record here of their reported elopement marriage at Seabrook, N. H., the former Ella Frankfurter, sister of the U. S. Supreme Court justice, and her North Attleboro bridegroom, Joseph Rogers, have rendered themselves liable to legal penalty, City Registrar James A. Burke announced today.

He said he was sending a warning notice, with a copy of the law, to Miss Frankfurter's Brimmer st., address and to Rogers at North Attleboro.

According to Registrar Burke, persons who are legal residents of Massachusetts must report out-of-state marriages to officials of their home communities within seven days after their return there.

Failure to make this report is punishable by court prosecution and fine.

Friends of the former Miss Frankfurter say she and Rogers were married in the New Hampshire Green last December, but kept the match secret until a religious ceremony was performed in Brookline, March 10.

A social worker for more than 20 years, Miss Frankfurter has recently been employed in the Social Service division of the Boston WPA.

She and Rogers have refused to deny, confirm or discuss their reported civil wedding in New Hampshire.

33 New Firms Locate in Hub

Establishment of 33 new manufacturing industries in Metropolitan Boston in the first three months of 1940 was reported today by the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The record is the best since 1936, M. D. Liming, executive secretary of the chamber, announced.

He said the new firms offered employment to more than 1000 persons.

The record for the first quarter of 1939 was only 19 new companies and 350 new jobs.

Asks U. S. to Probe Buried Dynamite

U. S. Dist. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon has asked federal agents to make a thorough probe of the burial of 66 sticks of dynamite recently found in Weymouth opposite the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.

Declaring it is a menace to leave dynamite buried around in various places without an attempt to safeguard it, Brandon said he has asked for a detailed report on the case with a view to preventing a recurrence.

MUST PAY DAMAGES

MEXICO CITY, April 5 (AP) — Two unions representing employees of the River Transportation Co-operative of Vera Cruz have been ordered by the first circuit court to pay the Co-operative 1,000,000 pesos (about $166,000) damages for tying up its operations in a labor dispute.

Pity the Census Takers On a Quiz Like This!

PITTSBURGH, April 5 (AP)—Trudging up a steep hillside to an almost inaccessible shanty, a young census enumerator stepped to an open door and found himself peering into the business end of an old-fashioned squirrel rifle.

"Get," bellowed an aged reclusive holding the gun. "And I get," reported the enumerator.

The eccentric resident flatly refused to talk "with any government man" but a neighborhood priest finally prevailed upon him behind closed doors to supply the needed information.

Another strange case reported in the survey was that of a garulous Negro couple living in a scrupulously clean little shack in an East End alley.

From a time-worn packing case the man lifted and proudly displayed remnants of a Civil War uniform. He insisted he was 120 years old and knew Lincoln. The wife gave her age as 86.

35 ARE FAST WORKERS

NEW YORK, April 5 (INS)—Super-efficiency put 35 New York census takers under a cloud of suspicion today. They worked so fast that Census Supervisor Grover C. Hill ordered their returns rechecked.

One enumerator turned in 140 listings in eight hours, another 128 names in eight hours and a third 165 in 10 hours. The census takers are paid at the rate of four cents a name. Hill said the work might not have been done properly. Meanwhile 10 women enumerators quit because they got tired climbing steps.

CALL FOR UNCLE SAM!

ST. LOUIS, April 5 (AP)—A Negro woman told a census taker the government would have to send Uncle Sam out himself if it wanted the answers to all those questions.

Baffled by her stubbornness, the enumerator called the office, which sent out its ace trouble-shooter.

How to Be Cruel To a Model

PITTSBURGH, April 5 (AP)—Mary Louise Morris, 24-year-old model, is asking a divorce from Albert Morris, 32, charging cruelty in a complaint that states "he never bought me any clothes."

BOSTON SPEEDS CENSUS

First complete returns from census districts were expected today from rural sections of Massachusetts, officials said, while the Greater Boston tabulation was gradually speeding up.

Theodore J. Dunne, assistant area manager of Suffolk, Essex, Middlesex and Norfolk counties, said yesterday that enumeration of many small towns has been practically completed and that check of the figures against the 1930 census might be expected by Monday.

The case of the lone "census rebel" so far visited in the area was settled yesterday, as a second visit of a Lowell enumerator to the recalcitrant citizen brought forth all the required answers.

District Supervisor E. Francis O'Day, for the Lowell district, reported to Area Manager Patrick J. Murray that the same enumerator who had been refused by the "rebel" returned to him and found him in a "better mood."

In Lynn, District Supervisor Eugene J. Sullivan reported, one of his enumerators yesterday called on a woman in the last house on a street he had "covered" the day previously.

"I saw you yesterday and knew you'd be in early today," the woman greeted him. "So I have all the answers written out for you, and while you sit down at the table here and copy them—will you keep an eye on the baby while I run down to the grocery store?"

Jewish War Veterans To Open Convention

SENATE DISTRICT BATTLE ON

Within the solemn chambers of the State Supreme Court today began a legal battle of far-reaching political significance—a fight against the 1939 reassignment of Massachusetts' senatorial districts.

On the outcome of the legal battle hangs the possibility of an "off-year" special session of the Legislature or the spectacle of candidates for senatorial seats running at large.

The suit, which seeks to invalidate the redistricting and prevent the secretary of state from preparing ballots, was brought by Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever.

Dever charged that the reassignment, voted by the dominantly Republican Legislature last year, was "the most vicious piece of gerrymandering" in Bay State history.

In effect, he charged that the C. O. P. legislative majority sliced the state up into districts in a manner designed to insure continued C. O. P. domination of the Senate.

Dever is the sole Democratic statewide office holder to survive a Republican election landslide two years ago, and has been prominently mentioned as a possible candidate for his party's gubernatorial nomination this fall.

As secretary of state, Frederic W. Cook was technical respondent in the suit. Serving as his counsel was Atty. Charles B. Rugg, widely known Worcester lawyer, named a special assistant attorney general for the case.

Rugg did not indicate the nature of his defense.

A victory by Dever might result in Governor Saltonstall, a Republican, calling a special session of the Legislature. Otherwise, success of Dever's move would force all candidates for senatorial seats to run at large.

PHYSICIANS RECOGNIZE NEW DISEASE: 'SOCIAL ILLNESS'

By HAROLD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Editor

CLEVELAND, April 5—Social illness, a new medical term which describes persons who are sick for no other reason than unhappiness over their environment, was recognized today by the American College of Physicians.

Dr. Edward Weiss of Temple University, Philadelphia, said that a third of those who see a doctor do not have any definite bodily disease to account for their illness, and another third seem to have symptoms that are partly due to emotions.

"The ill health," he said, "arises from long-standing dissatisfaction in the business, social or home life of the individual and this failure of adjustment to environment is manifested by a disturbance in some part of the personality, either as bodily symptoms of various kinds, capable of mimicking almost any disease, or as affectations of the spirit."

Flanders Dunbar of Columbia University said that emotions are capable of affecting not only the heart and digestive system but the whole network of blood vessels.

A study of 1500 persons admitted to the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center for cardiovascular disease, diabetes, broken bones and allergy showed that approximately 80 per cent were affected by some psychic factor that probably contributed to the illness.

Dr. Edward L. Boritz of the University of Pennsylvania said that social factors contributed to the illness of 75 per cent of a group of 200 sick persons admitted to the Lankenau Hospital. Ninety per cent of these were cured, but the successful treatment included adjustment of their social problems.

A person's family is one of the important units in this social illness, according to a study reported by Dr. Henry B. Richardson and Dr. Marianne Horney of the Cornell University Medical College and Joseph Macy, Jr., Foundation.

"Once illness has been seen in the light of a complete family situation," they stated, "it can never again appear as a simple matter.

"Illness from its social aspect, when viewed in such a light, may require a complete reorientation on the part of physicians and social agencies."

Plan Bible Training In Schools

WOONSOCKET, R. I., April 5—Voluntary religious education through co-operation between local churches and the public schools is provided under a plan which Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin will ask the school board to consider next Wednesday.

The experiment is Supt. Farrin's own idea on which he has been working for some time, having held frequent consultations with leaders of the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths, together with officials of the Y. M. C. A.

Stressing the purely voluntary nature of the plan, it is pointed out that permission of the parents of the children will be required in writing, and no pupil will be compelled to accept religious instruction unless parents are willing.

In addition, it was also specified that each pupil would receive the instruction in his or her own church, being permitted to leave the public school sessions on Tuesday and Friday for that purpose at 3 p. m., an hour before normal closing time.

For the two hours weekly of religious instruction the pupils would receive credit on their report cards for work done, while those not taking the instruction would remain in school as usual.

It was stated that before the plan can go into effect it will have to receive the sanction of the State director of education and the superintendent of Catholic schools, as well as of the ministers, priests and teachers who would participate in the program.

Teachers would also be excused from public school sessions if scheduled to teach one of the religious classes at some church. If approved and adopted, the system will be tried out next September.

BARONET TITLE FOR FARMHAND

LONDON, April 5 (AP)—A 25-year-old Kent farmhand has just become Sir John Fagge, a baronet holding a 300-year-old title, and his future, a pretty young domestic will become Lady Fagge.

The farmhand inherited the title from his uncle, Sir John Harry Lee Fagge, who died at Marshfield
Mans., three weeks ago.
The late baronet, 10th holder of the title, lived in the United States for 40 years, where he worked as a fruit farmer, laborer, truckman and gardener. He got the title which carried no cash, in 1930.
"I will work on the farm as I always have, and I don't care what folks call me," said the new Sir John today.

It is different with the Lady Fagge-to-be.
"Certainly I'll use the title,"

Sir John Harry Lee Fagge, 71, former Pepperell gardener and odd jobs man, uncle of the new baronet, had no more liking for the limelight than his nephew. He died at his Marshfield home March 19, living quietly for the 10 years that followed his succession to the title.

His neighbors, whose lawns he cut and whose hedges he trimmed were more impressed than he. He went to England in February, 1930, to claim the title and came back in October with a bride, the former Mrs. Florence Goss Murdock, widow of Albert L. Murdock, a wealthy American manufacturer.

Quizzed in Fire, Hatchet Attack

BUTLER, Pa., April 5 (INS)—
State police have questioned George Moore, 24, in connection with a Buzare fire-hatchet attack which left his bed-ridden mother, his brother and his mother's nurse in serious condition from their injuries.

The attack occurred at the Moore home in nearby Chicora from which young Moore allegedly fled in a borrowed car after the apparently motiveless episode.

Police said Moore had set fire to the bed in which his aged mother lay ill, then attacked the nurse and his brother with a hatchet.
Mrs. Moore suffered burns over her entire body, the nurse a fractured skull and the brother, William, a hatchet slash across the face as he sought to beat out the flames enveloping his mother.

Whitinsville Town Meeting Doubled Up

WHITINSVILLE, April 5—The first "double header" town meeting was on record today as a successful antidote for the absent-mindedness of town fathers and all were satisfied including the voters who disposed of both sessions in 40 minutes.

After notices for the first meeting had been posted March 27, the selectmen realized they had left out an important item, so they drew up another warrant and scheduled the second session 15 minutes after adjournment of the first.

GRILLED IN ESCAPE 'VIA MAIL'

BERLIN, N. H., April 5.—A Coos County farm inmate was grilled today on the story of two returned prisoners of the county jail that he sent to a Chicago mail order house for the back saw which they said aided their brief break for liberty.

At the same time "extreme laxness" by jail guards which gave them four and five hours of undisturbed work at a time on the jail bars with the unmounted saw was charged by the fugitives, indicating a far-reaching probe of jail discipline and conditions.

Roland Guilmette, 25, who was captured, and Henry Roberts, 29, who gave himself up, told County Solicitor Maurice LaForce they had been trying to escape for six months. They first used a piece of string made abrasive by cement dust from the cell floor and, when this failed, they made the acquaintance of the county farm inmate as he frequently passed their cell window.

LaForce said the pair told him the farm inmate was persuaded to send away for the saw blades and that the rest was made easy as they were only visited at meal time.

Consuelo Vanderbilt Wins Second Divorce

RENO, Nev., April 5 (AP)—At a private trial in which she charged cruelty, Consuelo Vanderbilt, divorced granddaughter of the late U. S. Senator James G. Fair, won an uncontested divorce from Henry Gassaway Davis.

The heiress, daughter of Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, was married to Davis at Miami, Fla., Nov. 26, 1937. She divorced her first husband, Earl E. T. Smith, here in 1935.

PAST 40? And Growing Old Too Soon Try Biodine The Food Adjunct Tonic For Men and Women Past 40... AND WAKE UP AND LIVE!

Biodine is not sold as a cure-all for the troubles of middle-aged people, nor is it sold as a youth restorer. It is the purpose of Biodine to supply you with Vitamin B₁ and Iodine, two food essentials that are needed by many men and women past 40.

Medical references show that a lack of Vitamin B₁ may be the cause of many symptoms due to incomplete diets and generally associated with early aging, such as: intestinal sluggishness, nervousness, and loss of youthful vigor, perhaps, and vitality. It is these symptoms of ill health that sometimes makes a man or woman look and feel 10 years older than he or she actually is. The United States' Department of Agriculture's miscellaneous publication No. 275 shows that white bread, potatoes, milk and similar common foods contain very small quantities of Vitamin B₁.

You may need Organic Food Iodine as found in Biodine to help keep your glands functioning properly. The glands are dependent upon a sufficiency of Iodine as a protection against abnormal glandular conditions, that may be caused by a deficiency of this important mineral. Biodine supplies you with Iodine from a natural, organic source.

We feel so sure that you will enjoy using Biodine that we offer it to you on a MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. Buy Biodine for only $1.50 for 100 tablets at your nearest Nature Food Centre store today. Use them as directed on the bottle for 10 days. If at the end of this time you honestly believe that Biodine has not helped you, the trial is Free. Return the bottle and get your money back in full. Mail orders sent postpaid.

Garner Praised By Farley

DALLAS, Tex., April 5 (AP)—Postmaster-General—and willing presidential candidate—James A. Farley sat in a cluster of John Garner supporters here, eulogized Texas' Cactus Jack, then smiled: "But as for myself—well, like Barkie (the Dickens character), I'm willing."

Mayor Woodall Rogers of Dallas broke the ice for Garner supporters who crowded the breakfast hall, when he arose to greet Farley with:

"Old Man Texas asked me to ask you to get acquainted with his son John. The Old Man also said to tell you he thinks you two would make fine partners!"

FARLEY RESPONDS

Farley arose and responded: "On more than one occasion I have met up with your son, Jack. I have known him long enough to have just as high regard and just as sincere affection for him as you Texans."

"During a long and active career no man in the history of American politics has left his mark on history as has Jack Garner. He is a man of great ability."

Farley counseled Texas Democratic committeemen and committeewomen to keep "cool, calm and collected."

KEEP COOL

"During the next three months the Democrats must keep their feet on the ground. It is essential that the Democratic party be victorious. I am of the opinion that the people want the Democrats to remain in power."

"When the delegates get to Chicago convention, common sense will prevail. We may have little difficulties now, but they will be ironed out."

Farley began a tour of seven Texas cities today.

Anti-Catholic Propaganda Hit

VATICAN CITY, April 5 (AP)—A speaker on the Vatican City radio, using for his subject "Woman in Christendom—Notes on Neopaganism," replied to what he called propaganda against the Catholic Church in Germany.

Speaking in Italian, the broadcaster first discussed Russian "propaganda to the effect that Bolshevism liberated womanhood," then devoted most of his time to an exposition entitled "Woman and Motherhood" which took place in Berlin Dec. 15-Jan. 21 under sponsorship of Rudolph Hess, Adolf Hitler's deputy party leader, and other Nazi chiefs.

In this exhibition, the speaker said the Nazis sought to show that "the Catholic church is the enemy of women and shows contempt for women."

Hearing Thursday In Ormond Case

His bail set at $2500, Paolo Castelli, 36, of Jacques st., Somerville, today awaited a hearing next Thursday on charges set after the death of Charles Ormond, 62, naval specialist, in Cambridge a month ago.

Castelli pleaded not guilty to charges he stole a pair of glasses and $15 from Ormond the night preceding his death. He had been charged by Judge Arthur P. Stone at an inquest with having robbed Ormond, whose death was attributed to "natural causes."

DELAY CLIPPER TRIP

NEW YORK, April 5 (INS)—For the second consecutive day bad weather forced a 24-hour postponement of the take-off of a clipper plane upon which Ambassador William C. Bullitt was to have returned to his Paris post.

ELDERLY NURSE GETS LIFE IN SLAYING

ALLEN TOWN, Pa., April 5 (AP)—Miss Margaret Cowan, 77-year-old nurse who said she killed her sister in the Allentown State Mental Hospital to put her "out of her misery," was convicted of first degree murder here and sentenced to life imprisonment.

A jury of six men and six women returned the verdict at the opening of court. Judge Richard W. Jobst immediately sentenced the elderly woman to the State Industrial Home for Women at Muncy, Pa. Miss Cowan received the verdict without display of emotion.

She testified yesterday "Our Heavenly Father" told her to kill her sister last Aug. 15.

WEE HOPI BABY, FOODLESS 3 DAYS AT BIRTH, THRIVES

HOLBROOK, Ariz., April 5 (AP)—A 21-ounce Indian baby, who spent her first three days without food, water or care, was reported today to have a "very good" chance for survival.

Born two or three months prematurely at Oraibi, the oldest continuously inhabited community in the United States, the child was brought to Dr. James F. Klock, senior physician at the Hopi General Hospital, Keams Canyon, Feb. 7.

Dr. Klock placed her in an incubator, improvised from a heat lamp. Since then she has gained two pounds.

Minnesota Seen Going To Dewey

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, APRIL 5, 1940

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota was reported reliably today to have informed Washington friends that he hoped to influence his State's delegation to support Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican presidential nomination.

This information occasioned surprise in some Republican quarters, which pointed out that Roy Dunn, Minnesota party chairman, has been working to send the State's 22 delegates to the national convention uninstructed. The delegation will be chosen in a convention May 23. The 32-year-old Governor has been mentioned as a possible "key-note" at the national convention. For that reason some politicians have been inclined to think he might seek to preserve a neutral attitude, at least publicly.

UPSETS PROGRAM

If Stassen chose to announce support for Dewey, this might interfere with recent plans put forward by Dunn for eight or nine midwestern states to choose uninstructed delegations.

Leaders of that move hoped by unified action to enhance their states' influence not only in the selection of the party standard bearer but in obtaining a farm plank conforming to their views.

Given Minnesota's backing, Dewey would be assured of a sizable bloc of midwestern votes, in addition to the support he expects from an uninstructed New York delegation regarded as largely favorable to him.

In Tuesday's Wisconsin primary vote the New York district attorney won the backing of the state's 24 delegates.

NO ILLINOIS RIVAL

He has no opposition in the Illinois preferential primary next Tuesday, but will face a rival bid from Sen. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, for Nebraska's 14 delegates on the same day.

Vandenberg's friends indicated, meanwhile, that they would make a last-minute speaking campaign for him in Nebraska. Sen. Nye (R.) of North Dakota was enlisted for a speech Saturday night, and other friends are expected to appeal for support.

Democrats, meanwhile, looked to the Illinois primaries for additional indications as to third term sentiment. Vice President Garner's name will be on the ballot, opposing President Roosevelt.

The President's 2 to 1 defeat of Garner in Tuesday's Wisconsin balloting continued to provoke pro and con comment, since Garner won two of the 24 delegates.

Ickes Asks Spot As F. D. Delegate

WASHINGTON, April 5 (INS)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes and other leading third term advocates today were revealed as having laid plans to become delegates to the Democratic national convention in order to be able to further their campaign for re-nomination of President Roosevelt.

Ickes, who has lashed out at two third term opponents—Vice-President Garner and CIO Chief John L. Lewis—has been promised a part of a vote in the Illinois election. The deal, which will permit Ickes to get onto the convention floor, was worked out last week with the Kelly-Nash machine when the secretary was in Chicago. Ickes was promised either half or a quarter of a vote as a delegate at large.

Young Wife Heads Christian Front Jury

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—A jury headed by a young Brooklyn housewife was ready today to try 17 men accused of conspiring to substitute a dictatorship for this country's government.

The defendants have been variously identified with "Christian Front" movements.

The tedious selection of 11 men and the woman, Mrs. Helen R.
Titus, was completed after Federal Judge Marcus B. Campbell searchingly inquired into the beliefs, friendships, connections and personal activities of each of the talesmen.

Judge Campbell demanded answer to these questions:

"Are you all firm believers in the government of the United States and do you believe that the government of the United States should be controlled by any forces other than those properly selected officers of government selected under the advice of the people?"

"Do you believe that any group in the United States has any right to conspire to overthrow by force
States?"

"Are any of you conscious of any bias against any religious or racial group, or do any of you belong to any group which is opposed to any religious or racial group?"

The judge asked especially if they were members of any of the following groups:

The Christian Front, the National Guard, any military or naval organization, any organization opposed to any group because of race, color or creed, the Communist, Socialist or American labor parties; the American Youth Congress, the American Students Union, the Abraham Lincoln Bigade, the Friends of Loyalist Spain, the American Legion, or any other veterans' organization, any shooting clubs, or the Irish Republican Army.

posed to any religious or racial group?"

The judge asked especially if they were members of any of the following groups:

9 Youths Held In Boy Killing

PHILADELPHIA, April 5 (AP)— Nine youths were under arrest today in the slaying of a 16-year-old boy during a street-corner gun battle between two rival "gangs."

All were charged with conspiracy to commit murder. McCormick said five guns and a supply of ammunition were seized by arresting officers and that more than a dozen other boys are being sought.

The dead youth, Leroy Daniels, was shot to death on a West Philadelphia street Sunday night. Another boy is in a serious condition at a hospital, with a bullet wound in his head.

Girls to Decide B. C. Best-Looker

Boston College's dispute over the most handsome member of the senior class will be decided tonight by girls attending a college dance at the Tower building, University Heights.

The feminine cheers will be recorded on an applause meter, which will determine the winner.

The contestants may dress in any clothing which will best show off their beauty and brawn, Editor Francis X. Ahearn of the Sub-Turri, said.

This decision was reached, he said, after it was decided to allow James R. Ryder to wear his uniform. Ryder is the entry of the college officers' training platoon of the United States Marines.

18 BRIDE, 60, FINDS BOY'S LOVE IDEAL

KENNEBUNKPORT, Me., April 5—Love, it's wonderful! That was the sentiment here today of 60-year-old Grace E. Ailyn Cook and 21-year-old Paul Cook, bride and bridegroom of a few days, as they started out to make a go of their "ideal marriage" in the face of tradition.

"The world is unimaginative," Cook said in an interview with reporters. "In my 21 years I have lived more than many men twice my age and have known many young girls, but till I met my wife I never met the perfect woman. She has intelligence, charm, sympathy—and youth."

The new Mrs. Cook, a slim, attractive woman with curly gray hair, is a clubwoman and well known in this town. In her lovely colonial home in which the newlyweds are living, she added:

"If anyone had told me three years ago, when I met Paul, I would be doing this, I would have thought they were crazy. But we are in love and ideally happy. I realize this is an extraordinary marriage, but my husband is an extraordinary young man."

Cook, who has traveled widely, said he intended to continue his life's work—writing and chemical experiments.

It Seems a Mouse Really Can Sing

MURRAY, Ky. (AP)—When students at Murray State Teachers' college showed skepticism of the singing ability of a mouse, an instructor produced proof.

He had the mouse's owner, H. H. Leary of Benton, Ky., bring the rodent to the college and before students in the music department the mouse gave a canary-like "concert."

U. S. Oil Move Blow to Britain

WASHINGTON, April 5 (INS)—Despairing of a settlement of the oil expropriation dispute by negotiation between Mexico and the companies, the United States government has formally proposed its arbitration, it was learned today. Official quarters disclosed that Secretary of State Hull had handed Mexican Ambassador Francisco Castillo Majera a note invoking the Washington arbitration treaty of 1929 as the instrument for settlement. Majera immediately transmitted the note to Mexican Foreign Minister Eduardo Hay.

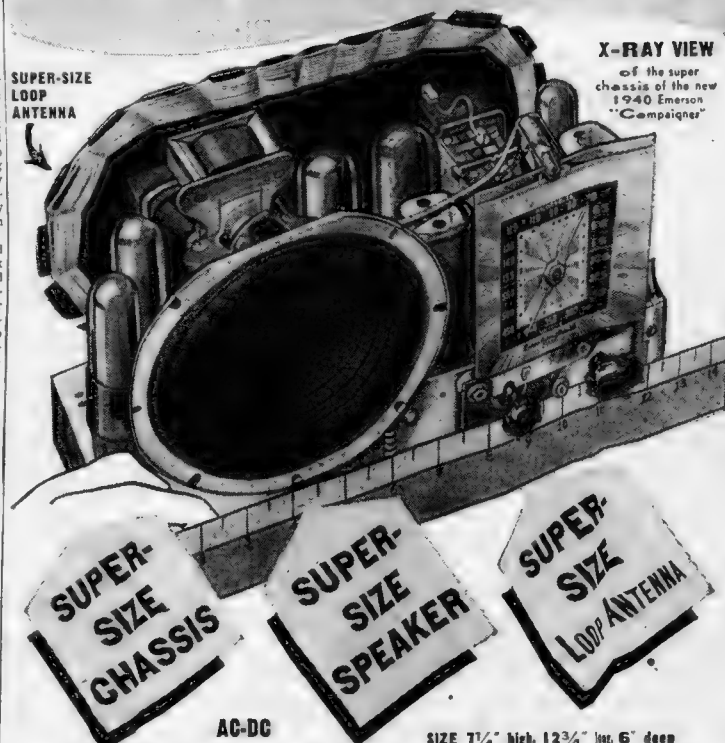

Diplomatic quarters here viewed Hull's move as a serious setback for British diplomacy. Britain had hoped and expected the State Department to get recompense for British as well as American companies in any negotiations and to that end severed diplomatic relations with Mexico when expropriation was proclaimed.

'HOUR OF NAZI DANGER PAST,' SAYS BRITISH ARMY CHIEF

By FRAZIER HUNT
International News Service War Correspondent

LONDON, April 5 (INS)—Great Britain's hour of danger is past. She is "out of the woods." Her army fighting machinery is ready for any surprise or emergency and she faces the future with supreme confidence.

Thus did General Sir Edmund Ironside, Britain's rugged, vigorous commander-in-chief, sum up the military situation in an exclusive interview with me today.

"Our army has turned the corner," he explained. "A fortnight ago I, for the first time, became sure of this. We started with very little. The Germans gave us these months wherein to build before the first fight of great force.

"If they had launched a full attack at the very start, when we were unprepared, they might possibly have got us.

"But it is too late now. We are ready for anything they may start. As a matter of fact, we would welcome a go at them."

I interrupted to ask how he felt about the possibility of the Germans attacking soon through Holland and Belgium.

"These countries also have had seven months to prepare—of course the Germans may try," he answered frankly. "We figure there are somewhere around a million of the finest German troops drawn up on the western borders of the low countries.

"There are a number of reasons why this great force is kept intact and mounted. It gives the enemy easy control of his active troops. He can handle every phase of troop life more efficiently when his men are kept in the battle area.

"But it is a question of how long can he keep them mounted and on their toes? It might be argued that sooner or later he must attack or his morale will weaken. But that is for him to decide."

I asked Gen. Ironside how he felt about the possibility of action in the Balkans this spring or summer. He replied:

"Certainly Germany has no real front on any Balkan borders at this moment. It would weaken her terribly if she did attempt to build two fronts as in the last war."

"And Soviet Russia?" I asked. "Russia has had some rather disastrous experiences fighting wars at the end of her far-flung railroad lines," he replied. "We know her whole transportation system has suffered and she has had some fairly good lessons in Finland as to what modern war is. She had grave difficulty feeding parts of her civilian population while the war was on. "There are some who even think the whole Finnish settlement was little more than a ruse."

Japanese Admit Air Raids on Bases

SHANGHAI, April 5 (AP)—Japanese army headquarters today confirmed official Chinese reports that Chinese planes bombed two Japanese bases yesterday, but denied Chinese claims that 33 Japanese warplanes and quantities of oil and other military supplies had been destroyed.

Hunt 2 Murder, Inc., Trigger Men in N.Y.

NEW YORK, April 5 (INS)—A widespread dragnet was instituted today for two characters Dist. Atty. William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn described as out-of-town "trigger men" who came to New York to "liquidate" as many hostile witnesses as possible against the Brooklyn murder syndicate.

O'Dwyer identified the alleged "imported killers" as Isadore Bernstein, a member of the Purple Gang of Detroit; "Bugs" Siegel, a reputed leading Los Angeles racketeer.

Meanwhile, the New York Journal and American reported in an exclusive story that it had uncovered a link connecting the Brooklyn mob with the garment industry racket once headed by Louis (Lepke) Buchalter. It's story was based on the recital of a man who claimed his $50,000 a year trucking business was wrecked by the mobsters through terrorism.

WANTED PAIR VANISH

O'Dwyer attributed at least 16 out of town killings to the Brooklyn mob which is already suspected of between 30 and 40 in the New York neighborhood.

Bernstein and Siegel arrived here three days ago and registered at a swanky Manhattan hotel, O'Dwyer said. But when police got on their trail they had checked out, he said. Bernstein is still in the city, O'Dwyer asserted, while Siegel has gone away "on business," but is expected to return.

"These men were here for business," declared O'Dwyer. "We expected to have out-of-town trigger men arriving and we are looking for them. We know them. They are here to shoot down those who stand in their way. They won't get far in Brooklyn."

Siegel, O'Dwyer charged, came to New York three or four times a year to "collect" for Lepke and Lucky Luciano, the erstwhile respective overlords of the garment and vice rackets. Luciano now is serving a long sentence and Lepke is awaiting sentence to a life term. "We'll get them both sooner or later," O'Dwyer threatened.

ADDS 21 DETECTIVES

To effectuate his dragnet, O'Dwyer added 21 detectives to his staff. A goodly number of them were assigned to protect witnesses against the mob who have been threatened.

Martin Kelly, a 45-year-old World War veteran, told the Journal and American that Lepke's gang bled him for extortion payments until he no longer could pay. Then they forced him to accept one of their mobsters as his partner in his $50,000 trucking business which catered to the garment industry. Finally, he was forced out altogether and Lepke's mob took over the entire business, the Journal and American quoted him.

Planes Plant Other Things Besides Bombs

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Airplanes now sweep over the wide open spaces of the south west, dropping seeds. The aim is to promote the growth of food grasses on the range, thus improving grazing conditions.

DRIVEN OUT—Graduate Nurse Gertrude Mugford holds her baby brother, Robert, after she carried him from their Everett ave., Chelsea, home when fire and blast in tailor shop threatened them.

Officials Heard In County Probe

WORCESTER, April 5—A new parade of witnesses began today before the special grand jury which already has heard 32 witnesses in four days.

Latest witnesses to be heard were two Barre town officials and four special sheriff's deputies who were hired for long service during the strike at the Barre Wool Combing Company's plant last summer. The special deputies were Edward M. Dorsey, George F. Considine, James J. Mulvey and Edward Flynn, all of Worcester.

Barre town officials who testified were Clifton E. Walcott, chairman of the selectmen, and Clyde Swan, town treasurer. Walcott has been an outspoken critic of the expense involved in preserving order during the strike.

PREFERRED GERMANY TO FAMILY

Rehabilitation Germany seemed a haven of peace and happiness in contrast to family life with the prominent Kerrigans of Stoneham, according to the youngest, blonde school teacher daughter of the clan.

Thus Alice M. Kerrigan testified as the trial of an inter-family property suit was halted for a weekend recess.

When the case resumes Monday in Middlesex superior court, more members of two sharply divided family factions are expected to bare further details of a household "civil war" stretching over at least 18 years.

$20,000 IN HOME

Miss Kerrigan, with her brother, Thomas, 52, Cambridge postmaster, is being sued to recover property formerly owned by the mother, Blonde Miss Kerrigan it was who told the court she dreaded to leave Nazi Germany to return to the family hearth.

jaunty straw hat, she took the stand after her brother, Owen D. Kerrigan, 87, had testified he kept $20,000 in a safe at his home in Central st., Stoneham. He had denied he mentioned any ill feeling toward his daughter.

Miss Kerrigan shot back that her aged father was a "problem" and that once she found him in the cellar "beating on the floor with some instrument."

She said she felt affection for only her ill mother with whom she now lives in Jamaica Plain, her brother, Thomas, and one sister, Mrs. Margaret McKenna, 48, of Fairmount st., Winchester. Miss Kerrigan admitted she had taken furniture from her "mother's household" and placed it in storage.

"Only twice in 18 years had she spoken to one sister, Mrs. Michael Golden, 58, of Woburn, living only two miles away at the time, and she told the court she thought a "bodyguard" was necessary if certain members of the family visited the mother.

Mrs. Anna L. Mackin, 52, of Daitmouth st., Somerville, who brought the suits as conservator of her mother's estate, testified she had always "kept out of the family scrap," but revealed later that her mother's housekeeper, Mrs. Susan Gilroy, had always stepped in when she attempted to have confidential talks with her ill parent.

Girl and Man Hurt As Car Crashes Tree

A girl and a companion were injured today when their car struck a tree in the street car reservation at Beacon and Pleasant sts., Brookline.

Miss Helen Colley, 24, of Atwood sq., Jamaica Plain, suffered a possible concussion of the brain and cuts on the face and knees while Frank Schele, 28, of Bigelow st., Brighton, sustained lacerations about the head. They were taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

'Allies Must Win,' Says Turkish Paper

ANKARA, Turkey, April 5 (AP)—A Turkish newspaper declares that Europe's small neutrals must help the Allies to save themselves from ultimate German domination.

"If the democracies lose this war all small and middle-sized nations of Europe will disappear," said the newspaper Djumhuriyet, hailing the elevation of Winston Churchill to director of all Great Britain's armed forces.

Workers Return to Spa After Vote Ends Strike

The two weeks' old walkout ended, striking employees of Thompson's Spa reported for work today.

The strike was terminated when the workers voted 353 to 351 in favor of having a council of American Federation of Labor unions represent them in negotiations.

Union officials said all strikers would report for work, but that it was expected all will not be needed because of the interruption of service that followed the strike. The employees will be put back to work as quickly as they are needed, it was said.

Negotiations for a contract for the five unions composing the council started immediately between union representatives and the management. The strikers had demanded increase in wages and better working conditions.

Circus Worker Dies After Lion Attack

PRESCOTT, Ariz., April 5 (AP)—Jack Russell, a worker for Henry Brothers' circus, died of injuries suffered Tuesday when attacked by two African lions as he was pushing a child from the danger zone in front of the cage.

Fellow workers used long poles in forcing the lions to loosen their grasp on Russell's left arm.

MORE HOLDUPS SOLVED

In a burst of activity, encouraged by their recent Black Spade capture, police rounded up five youths today in what was described as a cleanup of a series of liquor store and drug store robberies in Taunton, New Bedford and Fall River and a dress-suit rental shop hold-up in Boylston st.

Two young men from Dorchester and South Boston, allegedly confessed the Boylston st. robbery, telling how they intimidated an officer boy and trapped the proprietor, Joseph Valner.

They left him bound and gagged, after taking $17.

A third youth held in the Wilmer robbery is a Concord reformatory parolee, police said. He denied his guilt and offered an alibi.

Two youths from New Bedford were arrested as they moved their belongings from one Back Bay lodging house to another. Police said a gun was found in a suitcase.

They allegedly admitted a dozen or more Taunton, New Bedford and Fall River holdups.

Major Palladino Heads Vets Group

Maj. Ralph A. Palladino, Somerville, was re-elected president of the 362 Infantry Reserve Officers Ass'n. it was announced today. Elected with him were Capt. George W. Gibson, Dedham, vice-president, and Capt. Joseph A. McCueker, Medford, and Capt. Elmer E. Ellsworth, Newtonville, members of the council.

Delegates to the Massachusetts Reserve Officers Ass'n convention in New Bedford, May 16, were Capt. Frank M. Chubbuck, Weymouth; Lieut. Louis H. Hough, Brookline; and Lieut. Francis A. McLaughlin, Jamaica Plain.

A reception was given Lieut. Col. Thacker Nelson, Wayland, new regimental commander, by fellow officers at the Boston Yacht Club.

Hold Ex-Pal in Death Of Hollywood Bookie

HOLLYWOOD, April 5 (INS)—Dave Klegman, 43, was held by police today in connection with the murder, 15 months ago, of Voltaire L. Irwin, big-time Hollywood bookmaker. Klegman was once a partner, police said, of the gambler who was shot to death in Hollywood.

Police believe reason for the slaying was that Irwin held out $11,000 from Klegman and three other men.

CABBY ALBERT BETHONEY AND WIFE
Wait Reward for Honesty

Cabby Waits Bright Reward for Honesty

Having wooed and won Dame Fortune with an unusual display of practical honesty, a struggling young taxi driver and his girl bride saw brighter prospects ahead today.

Albert Bethoney of Oak pl., Boston, and his bride of a month, already had received a $5 "tip" from Miss Florence L. Miller, 60, well-to-do Mansfield resident, for the return of $54 she left in Bethoney's cab at South Station.

And Mrs. Miller had promised she will improve considerably on that reward today, after the first excitement is over.

Other business opportunities may be offered as tribute to the cabby's

TRAP GIRL, 11, IN FAMILY KILLING

father broke down and sobbed: "Oh, my poor baby!"—to which Chloe replied: "Buck up, dad. Don't let it get you down."

Dyak Paul de River, police psychiatrist, after questioning Chloe, a sixth-grade student he described as above average intelligence, said he considered her "the cruelest, bloodiest, coolest individual I ever met."

Veteran police officers, accustomed to questioning hardened criminals, said they were astonished by the imperturbable demeanor of the girl, who was described by one police matron as having "a face like an angel's."

"I had a very limited interview with the girl in the police station after I had been called into the case," said Dr. River. "She stood up well for one of a family struck by such a crime. She showed little emotion."

"Chloe is a precocious youngster. She acts like a girl of 15 or 16 years of age. She is a child and is well read."

"As to her guilt or innocence I cannot say. She told me she was sure she had not committed the murders."

After being questioned for a while Chloe sat down with Capt. Edwards and ate a hearty steak dinner. When he refused to order her a bottle of beer she snapped:

"Mother and I split a bottle a couple of days ago."

Capt. Edwards said the supposed fair-haired, blue-eyed Chloe fast told him calmly and with no sign of tears that her mother, of medium height and build, killed the three children with the hammer, saying that demons were after her.

Then, at the request of her mother, Chloe said she took the weapon and "cooked" her about 50 times on the head and body until the head broke off the handle of the hammer, then beat her with the handle "until she stopped breathing."

Repeated questioning of the girl and subsequent development of the discrepancies, however, led Edwards to conclude that Chloe was still in bed; went to the kitchen where Marquis and Daphne were playing, and fatally "killed" them; then encountered her mother in the hallway, struck her down with the hammer and beat her to death.

Captain Edwards said the palms of Chloe's hands were blistered, apparently from considerable use of the hammer.

Continuing his reconstruction of the tragedy, Edwards said:

"Chloe then went into the bathroom and killed Ann. In an attempt to disguise the whole affair, she tried to burn her mother's body. She dressed a mattress from a day bed in her mother's bedroom, placed her mother's body on the mattress and started a fire."

"The nightgown was burned from Mrs. Davis, but Chloe saw she could not, as she hoped to do, burn the house. She changed her clothing, took an hour to think things over, concocted a story about her mother believing in 'demons' and called her father."

CALM WITH FATHER

When the father reached home, Edwards said Chloe told him, when he inquired what was wrong, "You'd better go in the kitchen and see."

Later, the police captain related, the girl said to her father:

"Daddy, you mustn't get excited; let's go for a walk."

Chloe, suffering from a head injury police believe she either suffered in a struggle with her mother or she inflicted on herself with the hammer to substantiate her story that her mother was responsible for the crime, answered police questions with no show of emotion and then sat down and ate a meal.

Edwards said the girl, after giving various versions, finally admitted she killed her mother with the hammer, struck her young brother three times and then beat him to death to "put him out of his misery."

One of Chloe's stories, Edwards said was that her mother killed the children, set fire to her hair and then ordered her to strike her with the hammer to "stop this pain."

Then she changed her story, Edwards said, and declared that Marquis was dead when she awakened and that she found her mother striking her young sisters.

Later, the police captain drew an admission from her, he said, that she beat her brother, as well as her mother, but denied striking her two sisters.

Police planned to renew their questioning of the girl today with the aid of her father.

En route from the police station for a commitment of her cousin, of the crime, Chloe wept down to schoolmates who, facing white with terror, were clustered on the lawn.

Inside the house, she wept openly through tears worse than any depicted with blood, telling her story in a lively chapter.

At one point, she stood over and started to put a small organ purchased for her by her father, pointing to some bones in her room, Chloe said.

"I'm a bookworm. I read all the time."

Little Patricia Atwell, a neighbor told police she once saw Chloe fly into a rage and beat her mother repeatedly with a brassstick when her mother refused her a nickel for candy. She also said Chloe refused to obey her mother in simple household duties.

During the questioning of Chloe, her father once saw Chloe in tears and muttered "Oh, my poor baby."

Chloe looked up and, almost sneeringly, remarked:

"Buck up, Dad. Don't let it get you down."

Then she reached for the comic page of a newspaper and asked not to be disturbed as she read her favorite strips.

Park in the question, Chloe became hungry and I wanted some lemon pop and chicken soup."

Coast Girl Killer Was Good Student

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 5 (AP)—Chloe Davis, 11, who is held by Los Angeles authorities in connection with the fatal beating of her mother, a brother and two sisters, was described by Grand Rapids school authorities to have been a good student while she attended classes here, between September, 1934, and June, 1937.

Both Mrs. Davis and her husband, F. Barton Davis, were natives of Grand Rapids. The husband managed a grocery store here, and later held a similar position at Benton Harbor before moving to California.

Mrs. Davis, the former Louisa Bjorkman, was graduated from Central high school in 1922 and was married Christmas Day 1928.

The Rev. A. E. Thompson, pastor of Park Congregational Church, recalled the Davis family as "one of the most likeable and devout in the church."

NAZIS OPEN NEW DRIVE ON FRENCH

PARIS, April 5 (INS).—The western front from the sector east of the Moselle River to the Vosges Mountains was agitated today by unusually heavy German patrol activities which resulted in numerous combats between the Nazi scouts and allied outposts.

One French outpost in the Nied River area suffered losses as the result of a violent German artillery and trench mortar barrage, but finally succeeded in repulsing the attack, according to reports to Paris.

(Editor's note: A German war communiqué stated: "Shock troops southeast of Saarbrücken destroyed an enemy outpost. The latter left behind 15 dead.")

Several individual German planes bombed and strafed French troops, and an artillery duel broke out east of the Moselle.

Along the Rhine front the French "blasted" the enemy with pacifist propaganda by means of loud speakers.

Rival's Ex-Husband Tells of Love Scene

His own good friend—wearing a tie he himself had given him as a present—walked into his home and made love to his wife, Ralph J. Mulliken of Medford st., Arlington, testified in Suffolk Probate Court today.

When asked what he had been doing, this good friend said he was merely fixing a cord for an electric iron, Mulliken added.

Gray-haired, soft-spoken Mulliken, about 50 years old, was not seeking a divorce for himself, however. Instead he was a witness in the suit of Mrs. Madeleine Kingston Carr against Emmett T. Carr for divorce on grounds of misconduct.

WHAT HE SAW

"I knew Carr and he was a friend," Mulliken told Judge John V. Mahoney in an almost inaudible voice. "Then my landlord told me one day that every morning after I left for work, a man would come into my house."

"His description made me think of Carr, so one day I pretended to go to work and came back and watched. I saw the man go into my house, and it was Carr, all right—wearing a necktie I had given him."

Mulliken said he called police, and while they surrounded the house, he slipped in through the cellar and found Carr and Mrs. Mulliken in a compromising position.

"My wife said: 'Well, it will be your word against ours.' So then I went out and let in the police."

BOTH IN COURT

"Carr jumped out the window and went racing down the street in his shirt-sleeves, but a police officer caught him."

"When I saw him go in the house I knew he had gone there for no good purpose."

Mulliken said his wife and Carr had been in Somerville court the next day, were found guilty on a morals charge and had appealed. He said he did not prosecute her further when she agreed to give him a divorce, which he got seven months later.

Patrolman Dennis F. Kearney of Somerville police testified he had chased and caught Carr and asked him why he fled.

"I was afraid Mulliken would kill me," Carr told him, he said. "What were you doing there?" the officer said he asked Carr.

LEARNERS OF CHILD

"Fixing the cord of an electric iron," he said Carr replied. Mrs. Carr, a young and attractive brunette whose home is in Fuller st. West Newton, said she married Carr Aug. 11, 1936, at Nashua, N. H.

"First we lived in Warren st., Alston," the dark-haired, slender woman testified. "Then Emmett lost his job."

"He was arrested for drunkenness—and after that I learned things. I learned he also had an illegitimate child in Waltham."

Judge Mahoney granted the divorce.

Her husband told her flatly she was "nothing but a ball and chain." Mrs. Frieda Long of Boylston st., Back Bay, told Judge Mahoney in asking a divorce on grounds of desertion.

BLONDE IN BLUE

"We were married Oct. 12, 1924 in Medford," she said. "Things were all right till December, 1934, when he went to Washington to look for work, saying he would bring me along later. He never did. I went to Washington, and he told me I was nothing but a ball and chain, and I'd better get a job myself."

Her petition was granted. Mrs. Ethel B. Kennelly of Aspinwall rd., Dorchester, testifying in a suit for divorce from Francis V. Kennelly which was granted, caused a murmur of appreciation from the courtroom when she took the stand.

Mrs. Kennelly, a tall and slender blonde about 26, was attractively dressed in blue.

She explained that her husband was "a brute" when he drank—which was more than once—and beat her.

"He knocked me out once when he came home drunk," she said softly, "and threw the dishes all around the house. Once he knocked me down because his laundry wasn't ready. He was ugly."

supplies there that Germany wants for her war machine.

The technique is patterned on that of the great trading companies which laid the foundations of Britain's commercial supremacy in the 17th and 18th centuries.

The new trading corporation was announced in Parliament yesterday by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, who said it was organized primarily to deal with the Balkans but would be authorized to trade anywhere.

"ENCO," to be registered April 15 with Lord Swinton, former air minister, as chairman, is expected to be a permanent agency.

British ministers in southeastern capitals were expected to arrive Monday for consultations with the foreign office on the new diplomatic and trade offensive.

R. I. Man Found Victim Of Rare Blood Malady

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 5 (AP).—Edward J. Cavanaugh, 23-year-old Providence parking lot manager, went to a doctor to have a foot infection cleared up and discovered today he's the victim of too much blood.

Cavanaugh is suffering from polycythemia vera—a rare disease in which an abnormal amount of red blood cells are produced—and he's so red blooded he makes non-X-ray radiation and other treatment people look pale.

He has a red cell count of 9,240,000 as against a normal count of four and a half or five million. But Cavanaugh, despite his rare affliction, insists he isn't suffering. "If it weren't for that foot, I'd be out hopping around right now," he says.

He looked at a newspaper photograph of 19-year-old Theresa Ann Thiele of Omaha, Neb., who has a red blood cell count of about eight million and has had blood removed six times in that last four years.

Argentine Plans New Rules for Spee Men

BUENOS AIRES, April 5 (AP).—Argentina is considering stricter measures in dealing with more than 1000 interned seamen from the scuttled German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, informed sources said today, as the result of the disappearance of several of the sailors from interior provinces.

publics that "President Roosevelt soon would join them in the war." Such a campaign, it was contended, was aimed at counteracting defeatism in the allied home ranks.

Nevertheless, authentic German quarters revealed themselves as highly skeptical regarding Welles' assertion he did not notice the map in Reynaud's office.

These sources pointed out that the seating arrangement, as shown in the French photograph, was "clearly designed" to permit consultation of the map.

"Welles must have looked straight at the map as soon as he raised his head."

CLAIM WELLES INVOLVED

"Such arguments are neither here nor there," a German spokesman added. "The fact speaks for us."

"Welles has been compromised through French publication of the photograph. It is up to him to settle the matter with Reynaud."

"If a guest is visiting any minister in Berlin and is photographed, his permission is asked first, which is only common courtesy."

"If Welles was asked and consented to that photograph with the allied war map, then it showed bad taste indeed."

"But if not, then the French played an infamous, dirty political trick and involved Welles in one of the most cunning games yet played on an American statesman."

The fact that the photograph was snapped obliquely, German quarters claimed, seems to indicate that it was taken without Welles' knowledge with the planned purpose of obtaining a full focus on the map rather than on Welles' face.

DRAW NAZI PARALLEL

"What," asked a German spokesman, "would the world say if we had photographed Welles with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop had published it with a background map showing a redivided Europe in which France was partitioned and other frontiers were drawn."

"That is the way we take L'Illustration's photograph."

"On the political side, however, it is not a controversy over niceties or regarding Welles himself, but over the about-face regarding war aims exposed on the part of those who have been shouting loudest that peace should preserve democratic ideals."

German circles cited the map incident as a strong illustration of the ease with which President Roosevelt can be entangled in European political machinations leading to war.

For Welles' Map Photo For Welles Map Photo

PARIS, April 5 (AP)—French officials today blamed a magazine retoucher's zeal for the appearance of new-drawn frontiers on a European map in a photograph of Premier Paul Reynaud, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and the first secretary of the United States embassy, H. Freeman Matthews.

Germans contended the map showed a "whittled-down" Germany as part of the Allies' war program.

And This Pooch Is One Clever Dog

With a yen for mental gymnastics, Patches sits down to a newspaper . . . a quiet evening ahead with pipe and glasses.

New 'Patchies' despite his strident protest standing in all showman at the attorney to his master, Weller Frank N. Feltard Me. Weller is a when Franklin is tied in the way 'Patchies' declared that his master 'show' a increase his (and the show) a dramatic expression.

216. DISAPPOINTED

His speaking ability of "Patches" was demonstrated when the dignitary rejected his request for the disbursement in the Boston American office. While the untrained ear could not detect the words, the experience was worthy of a brass-bound demand. "Patches" was given the O. K. to perform and a photo record of the startling performance made.

The dog was visibly disappointed when he found there was no piano while reaching out for some of the high notes in the latest Fido hit tape number.

"Fatches" was assuaged with a Remington and worked out his natural zeal on the typewriter's keyboard, but refused to give out with a tune. As a matter of fact it would have been impossible for him to do so because of the burnt pipe he had jammed at an angle in his jaw.

This very same type nearly involved Franklin in a law suit. "Patches" puffed away so realistically on his briar one day for the amusement of a number of lady admirers that "parks flew out and ignited one lady's dress. Now Told to pray, the dog will place his forepaws on a bed or chair, rest his head on them, and hold the position until Franklin says, "amen." If forewarned that the day is Friday he will not touch even the most delectable meat (dinner) until he has prayed. His stage is the floor.

Too Easy—Just to show he's up on all doggy tricks, Patches does this. But he can do better!

And Driver Lived—Here's how smoking car looked a few seconds after it was hit by a railroad train at Stewart Manor, L. I., the inside a shambles, the roof burned off. But the driver fled with only slight injuries.

Just Five, He's Mascot and Darling of the Law

Cornelius Sullivan Gives Out Orders for the Day

Out at West Roxbury police station today, blue-eyed, five-year-old Cornelius Sullivan reported for his usual duties—but Oh Boy! was he specially proud!

He had a real officer's suit, badge, stripes and a shiny revolver given to him by the kindly, great big policemen.

For two years Cornet Lehigh faithfully made his report for duty to Sgt. Herbert B. Dwyer rain or shine every day.

LEARNED ROUTINE

He has learned police routine and now, after leaving kindergarten, he promptly arrives for the afternoon shift.

"Cornelius is a swell little cop. There's nothing he doesn't know about the daily routine of the action and he's the grand old little mascot any police station would have."

So, from they dressed Corcoran in a new uniform gave him a pocket square & nickel-plated revolver, and on each side of his shoulders, four stars.

TRAFFIC BEAT
Lumpkin has been arrested on traffic beat today and is being held in the jail.

"Are we proud?" chided him his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Sullivan of Hastings st., Roxbury.

And Keeps Motorists in Line

On Duty—Meet Officer Cornelius Sullivan, five, and mascot of the West Roxbury police station. Every day he turns up for duties when kindergarten's out . . . and here he's helping some young'uns across a street.

"The inclement weather was expected to keep many from the polls."—From Election Day Story.

THE ABOVE LINE, plucked from a news story reporting an important primary election in Wisconsin, may be more significant than the RESULTS of the election, which were of nationwide interest.

Frequently important elections are held in American communities—and ALL elections are important—with only a minority of the citizens participating because the weather is bad, or because people are too busy or too tired or too indifferent or too just plain lazy.

But isn't it a strange thing and a truly sad thing that these considerations of mere comfort or convenience are permitted to influence and impair the most vitally important of our democratic processes?

How LIGHTLY we hold our precious American rights and liberties, when we neglect them because it is too hot or too cold or too wet or too dry!

This liberty of ours was won, among other places, at Valley Forge, where American patriots left bloody footprints in the snow.

The tremendous price paid for it included not only hardships and suffering, but the very LIVES of patriotic people who had nothing but a VISION of freedom to inspire and encourage them.

What a travesty it is that we jeopardize our very real and precious liberties out of consideration for temporary and unimportant convenience and comfort!

How gladly the millions of oppressed and persecuted peoples in the tyrannized and totalitarian countries of the world today would pay the price of WET FEET for the right and privilege of controlling their own destinies!

Our American government and institutions, local and national, are exactly what our people desire them to be and make of them.

If minorities are permitted to decide elections, and bad government is the result, not the voting minority but the non-voting majority is responsible. Indifference and careless citizenship can wreck democracy as surely as corruption and invasion.

Vigilant citizenship is as much OUR duty as sacrificing patriotism was the duty of the founders of this free American Republic.

AN "OOMPH MAN"—in what respect does he differ from other men? Is he tall or short, light or dark, stout or slim? Does he prefer the drawing room to the athletic field? These questions are going to be answered for the edification of all Bostonians, gentlemen included.

For the Federation of College Catholic Clubs, representing 28 New England institutions of higher learning, is going to select an "Oomph Man" tonight at a formal dance celebrating the organization's 25th anniversary.

It is interesting to note that the selection will be entirely in

WALLACE BEERY

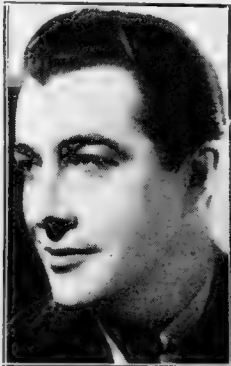

Which, Do You Think . . . feminine hands. Women comprise the committee empowered to name the fortunate male. Fathers, brothers and husbands won't be consulted.

Of course, the question of the "Oomph Girl" has been more or less authoritatively answered, despite the opposition of various Harvard sons who opposed giving the title to Hollywood's Ann Sheridan.

But no one to date has ventured to award a similar distinction to a man—no one, save the courageous and pioneering New England clubwomen.

What their decision will be is problematical. Perhaps the honorable judges will take Robert Taylor of motion pictures as a model and seek to find his Boston likeness. Or perhaps the "glamour" crown will rest on the head of a Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy or Wallace Beery counterpart.

Only the future and the women can tell. That is, if the latter do not exercise a traditional prerogative and change their minds.

... Is the "Oomph Man"?

Open House

WE build a little bird-house in a tree . . . and then wait patiently from day to day . . . until some operatic . . . minstrel wee with song ecstatic . . . takes a fancy to the house—decides to stay.

But we can build a bird-house in our hearts . . . leaving the doors open for a guest . . . till loving thoughts come winging . . . from out of Nowhere singing . . . and in the heart's own bird-house build a nest.

Paul T. Gilbert.

On the Side

HOW LONG have you lived in your house? Mrs. Mary McGrath of Manhattan lived in the same house for 71 years. Mrs. Gertrude Fawcett, another Manhattanite lived in the same house for 79 years. . . . On one block on the East Side of Manhattan there are 32 different languages spoken. I don't think I could even name 32 languages. . . . Only one man in seven shaves every day is what set of fancy statistics claims. I don't believe it. I have been shaving every day since I was 16. I know a lot of fellows who shave twice a day and one who shaves three times a day.

"MY MOTHER," says D. C. Wilcox of Chehalis, Wash., "was very proud of her 37 feet of sons; all six still living." Six six-footers for sons is very unusual. Would like to see a picture of Mrs. Wilcox and her boys. . . . All high schools should have compulsory cooking and diet study courses for female students. . . . One wonders what Italy would be without Mussolini. . . . A recent Nazi edict says "all hens in the Reich must lay 140 eggs a year." Nothing in the dispatch revealing this edict says what will happen to a hen who refuses to lay 140 eggs a year. How many eggs can a hen normally lay in a year?

JEAN MARIE CONSIGNY has written a book about "Gardening for Fun." Now I wish somebody would write one "Gardening for Money." When I get my ranch I think I will have a garden in the infield of my half mile training track. I will go in for gardening for money and anybody who wants to garden for fun will be welcome to work there. To return to Jean Marie Consigny, in private life she is the wife of George Palmer Putnam, who was the husband of Amelia Earhart. . . . "Don't you adore sea bathing," says one feminine passer-by to another. Sea bathing is all right, but hardly the subject for adoration. Females have a strange language all their own. . . . Gene Fowler, once a newspaperman, now a poet, novelist and scenarist, was the second American newspaperman to use the words "bistro" and "bordello." H. L. Mencken was the first.

THE STORY of Joseph R. Well, bewhiskered swindler, recalls that a Pennsylvania judge recently warned women with money to beware of men with whiskers. Also Mussolini has said on several occasions, "whiskers are a sign of decadence." Naturally this department is committed to the policy of hearing both sides of all stories so if men with whiskers have anything to say for themselves let them speak up.

"I HAVE SEVERAL ambitious and not a few dreams," writes a Baltimore bachelor, "but marriage is not included." This single gentleman, 34, a college graduate, an amateur athlete and successful business man, portrays such a pleasing picture of his life without a wife I hesitate to mention it. Things like this tend to make husbands discontented and harder for wives to train. Also irritate widows and divorcees. Nothing annoys a woman without a husband more than to hear a man tell how fine he is getting along without a wife. I heard one divorcee say of such a man: "He's just a mean, selfish thing. He should be ashamed of himself depriving some girl of the happiness his money could bring her."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., April 5—On our tour of the San Joaquin Valley we saw a type of migratory labor camp, where the individuals own whatever they put up on a small piece of land. Here each one has his own water pipe, but it is frequently immediately next to the outside toilet. The shelters are put up by the individual and when one individual moves out, he has the right to sell this strange conglomeration to another.

One young man, who was sweeping in his yard, told me that he had moved in the day before and had paid twenty seven dollars for what I saw. He, his wife and three children were planning to live there and he had a job! The potato harvest is about to begin. Men have been out of work a long time but now digging potatoes offers work again.

WE VISITED the Kern County camp where the county authorities take some responsibility. The land is free, they put in water and electricity and people are given sites on which to pitch their tents. In this camp there is a recreation hall with a WPA worker in charge.

An attempt is made to have a planned recreation program and to give some instruction in weaving and rug making. There are also some tubs and a washing machine installed by the county. There are more toilets and even a few showers, but the tents are pitched on the ground. This county camp, of course, is better. Outside of almost every little village or town, many of which look as though they had sprung up themselves in the last few years, you will find on the outskirts private and squatters camps.

We visited the Mineral King Ranch, which is a cooperative farm leased by thirteen families near Visalia.

These families live in inexpensive houses. They do real farming and have a chance for a really worth while life, if they have the wisdom to stick together and believe in the goodwill of their advisers.

FINALLY, I saw two government camps, one at Shafter and one at Visalia.

For migratory workers, these camps indicate possible standards for decent existence.

There is a nursery school for the youngsters, there are playing grounds for the elders, there are clinics and, in Shafter, a cooperative store.

Above all, they are run by the people themselves so that democracy may be seen in action.

CANTOR AND JESSEL FORM TEAM

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, April 5—George Jessel and Eddie Cantor will team in a vaudeville engagement at the Capitol Theater . . . Sam Harris will produce Irwin Shaw's new play. George S. Kaufman will direct it . . . Mitzi Mayfair, who abandoned Broadway when she married, will return via the Hollywood Restaurant. Lillian Roth also will appear there . . . Schiaparelli will do a lecture tour here . . . General Wood can have the SEC Commissionership, if he wants it.

HAM: All the film actors working in "The Tree of Liberty" will arrive in Williamsburg, Va., to be screened with the Colonial background there . . . Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who is being starred in that movie, told the director: "This is better than Newcastle—your bringing hams to Virginia."

DRAMA: The Drama students at the New School for Social Research are called upon for Improvisations as part of the training. Members of the faculty are agreed that one of the best improvisations there was done by a student named Clifford Odets, who received a one-word assignment—"American" . . . He yawned at rising, hurriedly pulled a "shower chain," rushed into his "clothes," gulped "food," rushed down the steps, rushed into the "subway," held onto a "strap," rushed up the steps, rushed into an "office," placed his feet on a desk and settled back slowly to sleep.

COMPETITION: Ada Hoffman, daughter of Harold Hoffman, is aiding her father's campaign for the governorship of New Jersey . . . "Do you think you'll enjoy campaigning against Edison?" she was asked . . . "It'll be fun campaigning against Edison," said the movie-wise Ada. "After all, he's not Mickey Rooney."

PRIDE: Boris Aronson, the scenic designer, was in Princeton and visited the home of Albert Einstein. One of Einstein's neighbors learned that Einstein has a wooden bowl in which noodles are made, and asked to borrow it. The scientist sent it by messenger with a note . . . The neighbor uses it as a centerpiece on the dining room table, with Einstein's note, carefully framed, inside.

FASHION: Anna Rosenberg, Regional Director for the Social Security Board, participated in the conference between Mayor LaGuardia and the CIO officials and helped settle the strike threats wearing the hat which had been the target for LaGuardia's attack on hats.

LILLIAN ROTH

EXCLUSIVE: As lovely as April in Paris is Boston in May . . . Some years, we mean . . . When the easterlies are not too prevalent . . . Over a winding grapevine—on a trellis too flimsy to permit an investigator to place his busy weight—comes word that former Sheriff Dowd of Suffolk County currently plans to pay the home folks a visit in that month of zephyrs and flowers . . . District Attorney Foley will be invited to meet with Mr. Dowd at an hour of mutual convenience, we hear.

IF THE VACATIONING FORMER BOSS of Charles Street jail could restrain his impatience to be home, some of his friends (according to the way we heard the story) are of the opinion that July would hold a better date for surrender . . . What with national conventions here and there, July should be a very active month for the headline writers . . . And young Teddy Williams or Capt. Jimmy Fox might be enjoying a record-breaking home-run streak . . . Or the war might be living up to threats . . . May, on the other hand, promises nothing predictable in the line of big news . . . Although who would dare peek that far into the future and venture a guess whether there might be room on Page One for the absent ex-official?

AT ANY RATE—THE STRATEGY of all potential surrenders is said to take stock of how much probable prominence the giving-up act will rate in the public prints . . . It would be the guess of most newspapermen that Johnny is Page One news sure-pop—May, June or July.

THE WELCOME-HOME PARTY to Band Leader Weeks reflected the handsome Newton Judd's popularity in his own profession . . . Mickey Alpert, a pal of Ranny's but his nearest (if dearest) rival on account of being at the Coconut Grove, which is less than a furlong distant from the Mayfair's front door, was among those present . . . So were Louis Prima, Lew Bonick and his co-brains (in Marshard, Inc.), Jack and Harry Marshard . . . So, also, Johnny Long, Anthony Bruno, Joe "Love Eyes" Candullo, Harry James, Don Humbert and Vaughn Monroe . . . Vaughn's presence was somewhat of a surprise, as he became a bridegroom Tuesday . . . (And the bride is stunning!) . . . They were wed in Jeannette, Pa., and are honeymooning uniquely . . . Harrisburg, Pa., was the first stop, and the only explanation of such an unhoneymoonish destination is the couple's loyalty to their native state . . . Isn't Harrisburg the capital?

BUT NEW YORK GAVE the Monroes the opportunity to hear Glen Miller and his boys in action at the Pennsylvania Hotel . . . One of Glenn's original tunes, incidentally, is PA-6-5000, the hotel's phone number . . . Last night, the honeymooners made a tour of the Boston nightclubs and hotels, and the busman's holiday pattern will be continued until April 10 when Maestro Monroe takes up his duties at Sells' Ten Acres.

WARNERS TO FILM YORK'S LIFE

By Louella O. Parsons

Sgt. Alvin York

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 5—Rushing between radio rehearsals I heard news of the most important Hollywood deal in months. Today Jesse Lasky signed with Jack Warner to produce "The Amazing Story of Sergeant Alvin C. York" on the Warner lot. Two million dollars will be spent on the screen biography of the World War hero General Pershing called "the greatest civilian soldier of modern times." Right after the war I met Sergeant York and I'll never forget his great modesty. As the soldier who single handed captured 132 German machine guns he could have written his own ticket for vaudeville and personal appearances. But he refused to commercialize on his fame and went back to the hills of Tennessee.

Now he is 53 years old and when he comes to Hollywood to supervise the war scenes it will be the first thing he has ever done professionally. His only interest is raising money for more schools in Tennessee—and such a fund is part of his agreement with Lasky, Jack Warner and Hal Wallis. So far no one is cast for the York role but don't faint from surprise if it turns out to be Jimmy Cagney.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: My first night in New York was spent seeing "Hellzapoppin'" as the guest of Olsen and Johnson. Guess I am one of the few people in the film colony who hadn't seen this riotously funny play. One of the funniest cracks in the show was the introduction of a boy not more than eight years old who was hailed as George Jesse's father-in-law! Visited backstage and met Johnson's pretty daughter.

ETHEL MERMAN

ADELAIDE MOFFETT, who married William Buckner (the broker now in the penitentiary) at the Club Versailles with several of her husband's friends. She tells me she starts a singing engagement soon at one of the night spots: Virginia Peine, in a tricky white hat, danced with Quentin Reynolds and Gloria Stuart and Arthur Sheekman were also on hand.

RAN INTO Franchot Tone, who is very happy over the success of "The Fifth Column" at the Stork Club with pretty blonde Adele Jergen, of the "DuBarry" company; Flora Robson, looking not half as austere as she does on the screen, dancing with an attentive escort; Ethel Merman at a midnight show of "Rebecca" raving about John Fontaine.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

EVER SINCE the census Jack and Mary had been in a dither over the family budget. Nothing like an inventory to bring out the facts. And Mary had insisted that Jack was spending too much on games of chance.

"It's all folly," said Mary. "You simply can't get something for nothing."

"Oh yeah," said Jack; "that's what you think."

"That's what I KNOW," snapped Mary, "and you'd know it, too, if you'd only use your head."

JACK STOPPED and shook his finger. "That's exactly what I do when I figure out a system."

Mary sniffed. "System my eye! You've got to show me one that works. I'm from Missouri."

"O. K.," said Jack. "Here goes." They were passing a fruit stand, and Jack stepped up to the proprietor and said, "Hi, Tony; how much are bananas?"

"Two for five."

"I'll take a couple."

They were handed over. Jack held them an instant, then passed them back. "Changed my mind. Give me five cents worth of peanuts instead."

These were delivered. But Jack repeated the performance. "Give me a package of spearmint gum for the peanuts."

The exchange was effected, and Jack moved away.

Tony shouted, "Hey, you! You no pay me!"

Jack turned around. "Pay you for what?"

"For the gum."

"The gum? I gave you the peanuts."

"Yes, but you no pay for the peanuts—"

"Boloney! I gave you the bananas for the peanuts."

Tony was wringing his hands. "But you no pay for the bananas—"

Jack grinned. "Why should I? I didn't keep them."

A COLD WIND blew around the corner. Newsboys were calling out "Extra! Extra!—New racket exposed!" and down the street a wheezy hand organ was playing the ancient tune, "Yes, We Have No Bananas Today."

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

WHY ARE SOME persons popular? Why do we "take to them" at once, vote them good fellows, yet regard with coolness others who try feverishly to win our favor?

You've seen it happen scores of times. Two women, perhaps, equally attractive, equally friendly, equally intelligent; yet one, seemingly without effort, will find a welcome wherever she goes, and the other is ignored, if not actually avoided. Strange!

"But I guess it just happens that way," you say.

Nothing "just happens that way." There is a reason for everything. There is very plain reason for popularity.

WE SEEK companionship because it adds something to our own lives. Primarily we do not like people for what they are in themselves, but for what they can do for us. They may be saints or geniuses, but if they can't do anything for us they leave us cold.

This may seem a selfish reason for liking people, but such selfishness is natural and healthy. Self-preservation—self-advancement—that is and should be the first law of nature. Our own lives are our first job. We seek that which promotes that job. We seek friends as we seek food and shelter, and for the same reason—we need them to help us live.

Life is a lonely and terrifying affair. We are filled with unsatisfied longings, nursing fears. Always there is a secret cry in us for something or someone that will help us endure or conquer life.

THAT IS WHY we need people. We are afraid to be alone with ourselves. We scan each new face with the same eager, inner questioning. Will, or won't, this new person lift us out of ourselves; make us more sure of ourselves; give us courage, confidence, laughter, peace?

And if the stranger does put us at our ease; if suddenly we feel happier, stronger, smarter, braver, then there is more than pleasure in our attitude to that stranger. There is gratitude. He has done something for us, and we like him because he has.

But why are certain people able to put us instantly at our ease, with hardly a word or gesture?

BECAUSE THEY ARE AT EASE THEMSELVES.

LONDON, April 5 (INS).—From a northern station I flew north with the coastal command flying squadron and I am able to tell the full story of one lone Sunderland routing six Junkers bombers off the Norwegian coast.

CROMWELL IS CALLED TEA HOUND

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—A Canadian official said that United Nations involvement in the European war stirred angry denunciations of propaganda here, during which Senator Holt (D.) of West Virginia, described James H. R. Cromwell, American minister to Ottawa, as a "free-lance propagandist" who paid $50,000 for his job.

Holt read the Senate excerpts from an address yesterday by Ontario's attorney-general, Gordon Coonant, who said that Canadians should "do every thing within their power to end the active support of the United States in the cause of the Allies."

"But I don't hold the Canadian people any more responsible for that statement," Holt shouted, "than the American people are responsible for the statements of Jimmie Cromwell."

Cromwell recently made an address supporting the Allies in their war against Germany, which drew a rebuke from Sec. of State Hull.

(Holt's reference to $50,000 was to the contribution Cromwell made to the Democratic campaign chest in 1936.)

Before Holt took the floor, Sen. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, had urged the Senate to order a speedy investigation of Nazi "white book" charges that American diplomats had engaged in war mongering activities.

Vandenberg said he accepted at face value the denials of Secretary of State Hull and William Fulbright, ambassador to France, that Bulitt had said the United States would join Great Britain and France in fighting Germany.

"I think, however, it would be unfortunate to close the incident of the so-called German 'white paper' without an official inquiry on the part of Congress itself," he declared.

"It is an excellent example of the immediate need for passage of Sen. Bennett Clark's pending resolution for the investigation of all foreign propaganda which seeks to involve us on either side of this war."

After the battle our flying boat returned through a storm and landed safely in rough water at its home base.

Our flying boat was within sight of Norway when two Junkers attacked us. The 25-year-old flight lieutenant commanding the Sunderland had only a minute to plan his course of action before the attackers dived at our tail, firing every available gun. Not a shot hit us in this volley.

NAZI BOMBS MISS

The Junkers then zoomed to a position 500 feet over us. The second pilot, a youth of 19, went up the ladder and stuck his head out into the glass dome to see what was happening.

Then the Germans tried bombing us. They dropped four bombs but all missed because the young second pilot was able to tell the pilot at the controls which way to turn to keep out of the way of the enemy above us.

These two junkers then apparently flew away and our plane resumed its work of convoying. But four minutes later four more junkers came up behind us.

PLANE IS SHOT DOWN

We dived low to the water there to prevent them from attacking us from below. Everything at this stage depended upon our rear gunner a non-commissioned officer who was ordered to use his own judgment.

And he used his judgment coolly, holding his fire, although machine gun bullets were hitting into the fuselage of the Sunderland.

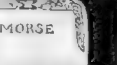

Finally, when the Junkers were only 100 yards away, he opened fire and one of the Junkers crashed into the sea within half a minute.

The three others fled, but we saw one of them, with only one engine still operating, crash at Stavanger, Norway, where the crew set their disabled machine afire.

New Chinese Envoy Fears for Life

TOKYO, April 5 (AP)—"I may be shot carrying out my duties as ambassador to China," Gen. Nobuyuki Abe was quoted today by Nishi Nishi.

Abe was said by the newspaper to have made the remark at a farewell dinner, adding that his ashes might be returned to Japan like those of a soldier killed at the front."

DEFENDS WEATHER BUREAU

G. Harold Noyes, official weather man at the federal building, back at his desk after attending a three months conference in Washington on air mass analysis and general physics of the atmosphere, today lashed critics of the Boston weather bureau.

"There have been frequent statements that the official forecasts have seriously failed at certain times," said Noyes.

"These statements are irresponsible as the exact failure has never been pointed out, and various losses attributed to stormy conditions have been charged to failures of forecasting when the weather conditions have been such that no available forecast could have possibly prevented the unfortunate results.

"A case in point, for example, the storm of Feb. 14 was forecast at 10 p. m. on the night of the 13th and the forecasts stated that there would be heavy snow and rains.

"The forecast could not state that the fine drifting snow would so affect the carburetors of automobiles so that they would become stalled even before the snow was deep enough to cause any trouble on highways.

"There have been no instances ever brought to our attention officially as to where a forecast deficiency has caused any loss which would not have occurred in a far greater degree if there had been no forecast at all.

"Most of the criticism has come from hindsight and never from foresight."

Boy of 3 Fatal Diseases Lives

CHICAGO, April 5 (INS)—Richard Wisowaty, 13, smiling victim of an amazing series of deadly diseases, today appeared on the road to recovery as he entered his 26th day under an oxygen tent.

The child was stricken three months ago with "spontaneous pneumo-thorax," which involves lung collapse through escape of air into the chest cavity for causes which are not apparent.

He developed lobar pneumonia which was overcome with the aid of sulfapyridine, a derivative of sulfanilamide. He then developed a streptococcus hemolyticus infection, which also was cured with the aid of sulfanilamide.

Dr. Irwin Hoffman said the boy will recover in about six months "if no complications develop."

Cherry Blossom Train To Go as Scheduled

Blossoming of Washington's famed cherry trees has been delayed by unfavorable weather. It was learned today, however, rather than disappoint the hundreds who have made plans to visit the nation's capital on the New Haven Railroad's Cherry Blossom Time excursion the special train will leave South Station at 8:53 p. m. tonight.

The excursion was arranged to coincide with the blossoming of the trees, a colorful spectacle looked forward to this time each spring.

Willkie Hits Deal For 'Dark Legend'

than a century, and turned it into an epithet."

He conceded that some businessmen and industrialists had been guilty of dishonesty and of abuses, but added:

"I will hereby publicly predict that you will encounter abuses in both industry and government in the future."

NEEDN'T KILL PATIENT

"Dreadful as it may be, we must face the possibility that we shall come upon some man, somewhere, sometime, who will be doing something wrong."

"It is hardly good practice to kill the patient in order to prevent recurrence of the disease."

The issue between private enterprise and government domination is pictured as clear cut, declaring:

"Either we shall continue with the system of free enterprise and individual initiative, or else the government will establish a totalitarian administration of American industry."

Willkie impressed on his audience of New England business and industrial leaders his belief in the re-

DESTROY 'DARK LEGEND'

He insisted emphatically that

"The economic suffering of the American people today is not the fault of industry; it is primarily the fault of government."

"We shall not provide jobs for the workers of America, new products for the consumers of America and new expanding industries for the investors of America until the dark legend against American business is destroyed."

The answer, Willkie concluded, was to be found in free enterprise working under the supervision of a government of limited and helpful regulatory powers.

Willkie told a town hall audience in New York yesterday he understood New Deal economic had threatened "to get him if it is the last thing we ever do."

As a result, Willkie said, a file on his activities and utterances was being kept in Washington. Willkie said he got this information from a representative of one of America's "notable publications," who said he had heard it from a member of one of Washington's principal boards of directors.

Sea of Beer Wets Road In Dedham

It was free beer in Dedham today—great, luscious, foaming puddles of it, free to anyone who wanted to ladle it off the street.

A nine-ton tractor-type truck going out Washington st. toward Providence overturned when, according to the driver, a pleasure auto cut in front of it.

The truck driver "jack-knifed," he said—turned his wheels sharply that the trailing part of the truck passed the cab.

The pleasure car did not stop, and traffic was held up for almost half an hour.

Meanwhile, the beer, all nine tons of it, poured onto the streets and was sprayed by the wheels of passing cars.

Lomasney's Club To Run Ward Slate

The late Democratic leader Martin Lomasney's famous Hendrick's Club will enter yet another election with its slate of ward committee members printed on the ballot.

A move by the State Ballot Law

Commission to bar the slate because two of the voters allegedly lived outside of the ward was overruled by Judge Frederick B. Greenhalge in Superior Court.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

MAESTRO WEEKS was reporting the influence the number 13 has exerted on his career since he quit New York for the hinterlands (and the big money). George Clarke (to whom we'll get around in a moment) reported that Ranny left New York on the 13th of a month, that he had Christmas dinner with 13 guests after travelling to Minneapolis (to fulfill a contract signed on the 13th of December) in Seat No. 13... Picking up the "13 angle" from there—but with an explanation that it will have a point beyond the mere coincidence of the number's recurrence—Ranny lived in Room 813 at the Hotel Nicolette in Minneapolis... At Texas University he was assigned room 1313, and by the addition of the Funnies (a marvelous trio) the Weeks band had now become 13 in number.

WHEN RANNY and his men struck their stride in Texas the band was playing 13 broadcasts a week. (Seven of these were noon sessions, by the way, and to a musician and a columnist, noon is akin to daybreak in normal lives)... Ranny has come to regard "13" as a pair of digits filled with good auguries... So we hope that the news we are now about to impart to Ranny and his boys is that they are booked to return to the Hotel Baker in Dallas the 13th of May... Thus, unless something extraordinary occurs in the Weeks' itinerary, the band's Boston engagement at the Mayfair, which begins tonight, will be limited to the time between now and then...

Timely Recipes for the 'Spring Fish Catch'

By MARTHA LEE

Just because Lent is over is no reason to forget about fish and seafood. For right after Lent comes the best season for obtaining the fruits of the sea at bargain prices.

The spring fishing usually produces the most plentiful and highest quality supply of the year. This means the best in quality is available at lower prices and every alert housewife will take advantage of the opportunity.

The winter fishing in southern waters is practically over. Now fishermen are starting to tap that great reservoir of seafood, the Grand Banks off the Newfoundland coast. Soon mackerel, haddock, cod, flounders, halibut and other popular varieties will be flooding the Eastern markets.

BOILED COD CREOLE

Mince 3 sticks celery with the leaves, 1 medium onion, cook in 4 tablespoons of oil until soft. Add a No. 2 can of tomatoes. Season with salt, pepper and hot pepper. Bring to a boil. Add 3 pound piece of cod, 5 peeled potatoes. Cover and simmer 1 1/2 hours. Cooked. Boast every 10 minutes.

HADDOCK WITH CELERY SAUCE

Boil haddock in fish stock. Serve with celery sauce. Cook diced celery in water to cover until tender. Drain. To the water add equal amount of milk. To each cup of liquid use 2 tablespoons of butter and 2 tablespoons of flour. Melt butter; add flour. When boiling add milk slowly. Cook. Season with salt and pepper. Add cooked celery. Pour sauce over fish. Garnish with chopped celery leaves.

BROILED MACKEREL

MAITRE D'HOTEL

Split mackerel for broiling or use fillets. Brush with oil. Broil on fish side, turn and brush with oil; brown. Spread this sauce on fish: Cream 2 tablespoons of butter, season with salt, pepper, cayenne. Add 1 tablespoon of lemon juice and 1 teaspoon of finely minced parsley.

POACHED FILLETS—CUCUMBER SAUCE

Roll fillets by laying flat on table and rolling from one end like jelly roll. Fasten in shape with 10 thickpins. Cover with water. Add salt, 1 bay leaf, 4 peppercorns, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 small onion. Bring to boiling point; simmer until fish is cooked. Drain. Serve with this or other sauce: Peel and tender dice 1 cucumber, cook until tender in 1 cup water. Melt 2 tablespoons butter; stir in 3 tablespoons flour. When boiling slowly, add 1 cup milk and water cucumber was cooked in; cook. Season with salt and pepper. Before serving, pour sauce over the fillets.

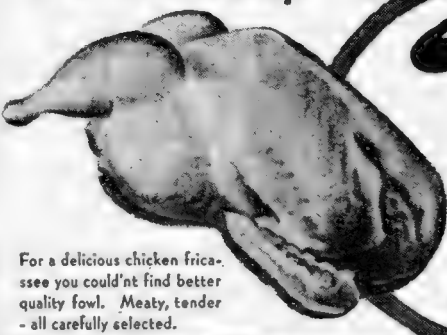

FISH SUPPER DISH

Cook 4 tablespoons minced celery, 2 tablespoons minced green pepper, 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 2 tablespoons minced onion in 2 tablespoons butter until soft. Combine with 2 cups cooked fish, baked and 2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes. Add 1 tablespoon brown juice and salt and pepper to taste. Add 3 egg yolks beaten, and mix well. Fold in 3 beaten egg whites. Pile lightly into oiled baking dish. Bake in moderate oven about 1 hour, until set like custard and top is light brown.

COD STEAKS WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

Put 6 small or 3 large steaks in oiled baking dish. Chop 1 small onion and 1/2 lb. mushrooms. Cook in 6 tablespoons water and 3 tablespoons butter, 3 minutes. Add 3 tablespoons flour and 2 cups milk. When boiling, season with salt and pepper. Pour over fish. Dust top with paprika. Bake about 25 minutes in moderate oven until fish is tender.

Cards for School Graduation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I will graduate from high school in June. Each graduate will be given engraved invitations to send to friends and relatives. Is it customary to enclose a personal card in each invitation. Should my name be prefixed by "Miss" or not?

BETTINA.

It is a definite rule that a young girl's card—always after she is 11, and often before—should have the

"Miss" engraved before her name. It is most important that the visiting cards that a girl encloses in her graduation invitations should be correct.

Love

And Marriage Maid Denied Company

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I was 17 my mother and father died only a few months apart, so I took service as a maid and work for a wealthy family who occupy a large house. I have worked for them for ten years and they are very kind, considerate, give me excellent wages and do not overwork me.

But I get so lonely in my room at evenings, for I am not allowed to have even my girl friends to come and see me. Last summer I met a very nice and sensible young man who has a steady job and good connections. But when we want to see each other we have to go to a movie, walk the snowy street, sit in his car or drive around, so we can be together a while.

I told him I could not receive him in the house. Although he was sympathetic about this, how can I expect him to meet me on street corners when he can visit other girls in their homes? Would it be proper for me to visit him in his room? Or could we rent a room so that we could meet some place where it's warm and comfortable? I hardly know what is the right thing to do.

UNHAPPY.
I hope if this meets the eye of the lady who has had this faithful employer for the past 10 years (or any other man who declines to let her maids have company) that she will try to put herself in the place of such a girl.

Then she will not be unduly shocked when she hears of a girl visiting a young man in his room, or renting a room so that they can see each other with some degree of comfort.

It's too bad for a nice girl to be driven to such extremes. And I hope the young man will shorten the courtship and take the girl to a home of his own. Otherwise, what is to be expected?

KATHARINE ROY, daughter of Mrs. Herbert F. Roy of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., becomes the bride of George Oliver Clark, 2d, of Boston at a small wedding at her mother's home today . . . Given in marriage by her twin brother, John Roy, the bride is wearing ivory satin with rose point lace and orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of white iris and lilies of the valley . . .

Due to the recent death of the bride's father only relatives and closest friends are attending the ceremony and the reception following at the home of Mrs. Henry S. Ludlow, aunt of the bride, in Saratoga Springs . . . Nathaniel Thayer Clark of Dover is his brother's best man and Mrs. Lloyd Irving Gibbon of New York, sister of the bride, matron of honor . . . She is wearing hyacinth blue crepe with a blue flower turban and carrying a sheaf of spring flowers . . .

The bridegroom, son of Dudley Clark of Boston, and the late Mrs. Cornelia Thayer Clark, is taking his bride to Bermuda for a wedding trip . . . After April 30, they will be at home on Commonwealth avenue . . . Mr. Clark, brother of Forrester A. Clark of Boston and Mrs. Philip W. Smith of Far Hills, N. J., graduated from Harvard in 1931 and belongs to Tennis and Racquet, Union Boat and other exclusive clubs . . .

Francis Sears Family at Opera

"BORIS GODOUNOFF," last evening's opera, is not as familiar to Boston audiences as most of the other operas on the Metropolitan's current repertoire . . . so practically everybody spent the intermission studying librettos to see what was coming next . . .

Members of the Francis P. Sears family were a bit scattered as to seats but got together at intermission to compare notes on the story . . . Mrs. Sears, who seldom misses an important musical event, seemed deeply interested in the majestic orchestration of the opera and the beautiful singing of Ezio Pinza, the gigantic basso who is a great favorite of Boston audiences . . . Over a simple violet dinner gown she wore a novel cape of coral crocheted wool . . . made with two layers, one of which formed a hood to protect her coiffure from the raindrops as she hustled from foyer to limousine . . . Her daughter, Elizabeth, sat with Mr. Sears a few rows back . . .

Mrs. Joel Goldthwaite, who, with her doctor husband had front row seats, held informal court during intermission as one by one various of her grandchildren and her son, Nat Saltonstall, made their way down the aisle to greet her . . . Mrs. Robert Stevenson's lavish chinchilla cape, one of the few in Boston, attracted much admiration and topped a beige lame gown and her beautiful diamond brooch and pearls . . . She attended with her niece, Mrs. Malcolm Greenough and her close friend, Mrs. Arthur Bell . . .

Wears Red Velvet

DEBUTANTE BETSY BRADLEY topped a burgundy red velvet gown with a short fur jacket and a gold tiara sparkled in her hair . . . Charming Mrs. Ernest B. Dane, Jr., wore another of the dainty gowns for which she is famous . . . of black velvet with a band of white ermine edging the off-shoulder neckline and forming quaint little fur sleeves . . . Mrs. Francis Hastings topped her black gown with a dusty pink faille jacket embroidered with a small design of black, and Mrs. Frederick B. Robinson, in a party with the James B. Plauts, wore ivory crepe with a colorful striped jacket . . .

Still others enjoying the affair were Alida Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wolcott who had a box for the evening, Peggy McKenna with Gerry Hayes, Rosamond Higgins, Pauline McKean who has just returned from Sun Valley, with her grandmother, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, Mrs. Charles S. French, George S. Foster, Barbara Bremer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird and their daughter Diana.

Auction Will Aid School

Mrs. Irving Wright of Chestnut 111, member of the corporation of the Lowthorpe School of Landscape Architecture in Groton, is assisting Mrs. John Cunningham with plans for a spring auction sale to benefit the school. The sale will take place Tuesday, April 13.

A treasure trove of antiques and bric-a-brac has already been promised for the sale, donations from corporation members and friends . . . the school. On April 8 Prof. Henry L. Seaver of M. I. T. will list the articles to fall under the auctioneer's gavel.

Sponsors of the affair include: Miss Ellen Bullard, Mrs. Gordon Allen, Mrs. Stephen Van R. Crosby, ss Helen Davis, Mrs. Louis Frothingham, Mrs. Charles G. Loring, Mrs. E. Lawrence Oliver, Mrs. Homer Gage, Mrs. Augustin A. Parker, Miss Constance Peters, Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon.

Debs on Radio Boost Show

A number of debs are making their radio debuts today when they present a program on WEEI to give the general public a preview of "Tonight at Nine," forthcoming Vincent Club revue.

Debutantes Sally Reed, Sylvia Winsor, Elizabeth Jenney, Eleanor Frothingham, Virginia Hoar, Susan Sweetser and post deb Louisa Barbour will sing.

Julia Barbour, leading torch singer of the past three Vincent shows, will sing several solos, and Mrs. Henry McBurney Parker, president, will discuss the work of Vincent Memorial Hospital, which benefits from the annual show.

You Can Be Beautiful

Here's a Beauty Buy

By ARLINE GOULD

PERHAPS you aren't planning a Hawaiian beach house for next winter . . . nor shopping around for a peek of moonstones, to be set in diamonds for your summer dance dresses . . . but you can have exactly the same kind of cosmetics favored by the elegantes to whom all these glamorous doings are an everyday matter . . . an "introduction to beauty" spring special makes it possible!

We aren't allowed to estimate exactly how much more you get in the box of seven preparations than the five dollars which it costs . . . but three of the full-size bottles included add up to that, alone!

They're packed in a milk-white box tied up with mahogany silk ribbons . . . a good kit to have on hand for vacation luggage or to decorate your dressing room right now.

One of the items which really sends us into a dither is their "cream of beauty" which is really a liquid and is used as a complexion softener and exquisite foundation for powder. It has an amazing way of softening the hardest skin immediately, so the powder goes on . . . and stays on . . . like creamy-toned velvet. And . . . as we pointed out . . . this is a full-size bottle which will last for months.

On second thought, their "skin food" cream is equally a winner . . . remarkably nourishing to a poor-textured skin that looks discouraged and wrinkled.

And on third thought, their powder also stands alone because it is one of the milkiest, softest and beautifully tinted we've run into.

Each with its own exclusive and delightful qualities . . . we can go through the whole list of preparations included and find in each one the reason why they are such favorites with discerning women . . . there is a circulation rousing skin tonic, a cleansing cream which is really a bland emollient, cream rouge and lipstick in marvelous high-fashion colors.

If you'd like to learn all about this exclusive 35 "introduction to beauty" box with full sizes of seven preparations, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

One hundred local poultry farms, nestled in New England's arms, send us daily a thousand kegs of extra-brown, fresh brown eggs. The hens that lay them, valued highly, live the pampered life of Riley. They do not have to scratch for food, but dine—this Hallowe'en brand—on the equivalent of steak, caviar, ice cream and cake. You'd think from these expensive eatables that roosters drew enormous salaries. The eggs laid in this feathered harem are all selected hatching material, but have to pass a test demanding details of their world standing and every egg is asked to state its best-measure and its weight. Each egg adjusted to 18, for 300 must have a very high L. Q. If it rates high, the market can expect to reach your trying pan.

Your answer to this puzzle, together with your solution to the five other Rebus Puzzles appearing from Sat. April 1, to Sat. April 6, inclusive, should be brought or mailed to the Rebus Editor, Boston Record-American, P. O. Box 2058, Boston, Mass., Sat. April 13, together with 10c in coin. In return for remittance, contestants will receive a special set of puzzles at the close of the contest.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American Rebus Game is open to all bona fide residents of the New England States, except employees of the Boston Record, the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, any person acting as a proxy for another, and any person who has won $300 or more in any newspaper contest.

2—Beginning Monday, February 12th, 1940, a Rebus puzzle will be published each weekday in the Boston Record and the Boston American. Contestants may obtain their puzzles from either publication. The six puzzles published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen weekly series. Answers for each week's series of puzzles should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor c/o the Boston Record-American Rebus Game. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One Hundred (100) prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their solutions, achieve the 100 highest scores. No contestant may win more than one prize. Vesting does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what participant prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking puzzles and if necessary a second, third or fourth set of tie-breaking puzzles. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest score achieved by contestants, in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solution of such tie-breaking puzzles. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking puzzles without assistance, in the office of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In cases of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers will be filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of puzzles and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest, the Boston Record-American will present a special series of fifteen original Rebus puzzles created by Harold Hart, foremost puzzle expert.

6—Any person, by entering this contest, agrees to abide by and accept as final the decisions of the Boston Record and the Boston American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others, the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the judging of answers, the scoring of solutions, and the interpretation of such instructions governing individual puzzles as may be announced by the contest officials. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record and the Boston American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. The Boston Record and the Boston American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the Contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American Contest Editor to the Contestant.

HOW LONG would it take you to save $10,000.00?

Ever think of it? Well, reflect on it for a moment—and then realize what a wonderful opportunity this Rebus Game really is!

Here's a contest consisting of a set of intriguing puzzles—the solving of which can bring you a sum of money far bigger than most people ever have at any one time in their lives.

Ten Thousand Dollars — $10,000.00 cash placed in your hands all in one lump sum!

NEED ANY OF THE PREVIOUS PUZZLES?

If you missed any of the previous puzzles the coupon below can be used to order the puzzles you require.

PUZZLES DIVIDED INTO WEEKLY SERIES

The puzzles are divided into series of six, that is, the six puzzles appearing from Monday through Saturday of each week. This week's series (the Eighth) should be submitted any time before midnight, Saturday, April 13. Subsequent series should similarly be submitted within the week following publication in the Record and American. (You can follow the contest in either paper.)

ENCLOSE TEN CENTS WITH EACH SERIES

The rules require a remittance of 10c in coin with each weekly series. In return, contestants will receive a set of original, entertaining Rebus Puzzles at the conclusion of the contest.

INFORMATION CORNER

QUERY: Do you have the name and address of every person in your contest on file?

REPLY: Certainly. We have a separate file for each contestant's answers. Every care is exercised to keep that file just as accurate and complete as a bank would keep a depositor's account.

QUERY: Does not winning improve a contestant's prospects for winning a prize?

REPLY: No. Nonsense doesn't count.

A Complete Short Story
Daily on This Page

ROSMANITH

ALICE NORTON fixed her face and arranged her curls while the dinner was cooking. At half past six, prompt as a factory whistle, her husband's latchkey clicked in the door. He went through his changeless routine.

"Hello there, Alice."
"Hello yourself."

He hung his hat and coat in the hall closet, clapped his newspaper down in the living room, found her in the bedroom, pecked her cheek, "Wash up into the bathroom. I'll wash up while you're serving." Slammed and snubbed the bathroom door.

Alice covered her silk print with a cotton housecoat and returned to the kitchen to dish up the dinner. She served it in the dinette, an appetizing look enameled daffodil yellow and apple green. The menu was corned beef and cabbage, ice cream from the drug store and home-made apple pie. Mr. Norton continued his routine. He walked through the living room remarking loudly—"I smell something good." He seated himself on one of the green cushioned benches of the dinette.

Alice sat opposite and looked at him, the hot prick of tears in her eyes. He was now dressed in house slippers, lounge pajamas and old brocade, dressing gown. "Well really," she said, "you might have selected me."

"Asked you what, dear?"

"Look at me Harry. Do you notice anything?"

Harry looked. He saw a woman of forty who looked 74, but I asked no age whatever to him. Just his Alice as she always had been.

"Nothing out of the ordinary. What am I supposed to notice?"
"Harry Norton, I give up. Here I am all made-up and curled and dressed to go out, and you don't even ask me if I want to go out. I can slave and work all day in these neon-toned four walls and I can sit and stare at them all night."

"I'm tired Alice. I've been longing to get home. To my pipe and my comfortable chair and the radio and the paper. Why don't you go out during the day?"

Alice pushed her loaded plate away. She had no appetite. "What's the use of having a husband if he won't go out with you?"

Harry groaned. "Where did you want to go?"

WHAT'S THE USE?

"There's a movie right round on the next block. A good one that I want to see."

Harry's tone had the resignation of a martyr reiterating his faith and submitting to the inevitable beating at the stake.

"All right, if I must go, I will go."

"Oh, no, you don't." Alice jumped up to attend to the coffee pot. "Do you think I'd enjoy it while you sit beside me suffering?"

"Then what can I do to please you?"

"Oh, stay in and twiddle the knobs on the radio. I'll go by myself."

The anxiety cleared from Harry's pleasant, homely face. "Do, darling. I'd be glad for you to enjoy yourself. I don't mind being alone in the least."

Alice slapped the coffee pot on the table so that the hot coffee splashed on the cloth. "I darned well will go—after that!"

But she did not go alone. She called up Mrs. Rogers, a middle-aged divorcee on the floor above, and found her free and willing. Harry, oblivious to the signs of her inwardly raging fury, saw her off at the front door. "I hope it's a good picture. I hope you have a good time."

The picture was Hollywood Cavalcade. It was more than a good picture. It was a nostalgic picture. Still fuming with disappointment—not so much over Harry's recent defection as general disappointment with life—Alice paid little attention to the opening scenes. Then music flowed from the screen and it was like a hand closing tightly on her heart. The hand let go and her heart tingled with a poignant, almost painful, sensation—the memory of how she had felt when she danced with Harry to that music, she didn't care to figure how many years ago. Came other melodies—other memories.

Oh, the marvel of youth, she thought. Gone—and one cannot go back. Her locked fingers worked together bruising her knuckles in her lap. Hot tears ran down her face slowly. Music might be the food of love. It was also the key that unlocked the secret carefully guarded fortress of the heart.

A eustard pie hit the lovely lady in the face and dark, outraged eyes stared from the gluey mess. The audience roared with laughter. Just as they had roared at the eustard pie epics of those lost romantic days. She had seen these sitting on a wooden bench at Harry's side, a blonde pigtail tickling each cheek, a large peppermint sucker in her mouth.

The bathing beauties in their absurd costumes and ribbon laced shoes, their impermanent curls and their bright, laughing eyes. Harry had collected postcards of Mack Sennet's bathing beauties, but he had said—"Think nothing of it. Funnyface, not one of them is a patch on you."

Now the audience was hysterical over the Keystone cops. Were they laughing at what they were seeing or at what they remembered? Alice laughed, too. At antics which were classic fun and in memory of lost laughter. Laughter while the heart was young, and Harry's hand was warmly holding her own.

Mrs. Rogers nudged her when the picture was over. "Don't let's was a composite somehow of all those big-eyed curly-haired girls who played in the silent. The romance of those old days and the beginning of the industry. Days that are gone and will never come back."

The boy came and planked down the milkshakes with hearty drugstore elegance. So you too have felt a key turn the lock in some secret place, thought Alice. "Do you mind if I ask a question?" she said, when the boy had gone.

"Anything you like. Go right ahead."

"It may be too personal, so don't answer if you don't want to. It's this. Were you sorry after you got your divorce?"

Alice flung her arms about Harry. "Oh, darling, darling, I'm so glad I still have you. I love you so."

stay to see any more. It'll spell this. Let's get out."

"DARNED QUEER"

Alice was willing. They went to the corner drug store, sat in a booth alongside a counter of tea cent classics and ordered hot malted milk shakes.

Mrs. Rogers looked pale and older than Alice had yet seen her. She said—"there was something darned queer about that picture."

"I thought it was wonderful," said Alice.

"Oh, it was. But so are others. But they got something queer in it, whether they mean to get it or not." She leaned back in the corner of the booth and lit a cigarette. "The girl that played the lead, she

An abrupt surprising change came over Mrs. Rogers. She crushed out her cigaret, sat up briskly, smiled vivaciously and stirred the long spoon in her milk. "No indeed. I should say not. The best thing I ever did. I don't say I didn't love him when I got married. I was crazy about him. And him about me. But it doesn't last. These things change."

Alice felt the weight of a thousand little disappointments as a great accumulated sorrow. "Yes, it's too bad. Natural, I suppose. I think the worst pity is there's nothing to put in their place."

Mrs. Rogers' eyes gleamed knowingly as if she had probed the flaw in Alice's outwardly smooth-running life. "Oh, but you're wrong. There certainly is. Now I'm free.

I've got alimony." She laughed.

"I quit when our marriage went stale. I don't like things with the zip gone out of them. Think it over yourself. This is a pretty satisfactory way of living."

"But not 100 per cent perfect?" Alice ventured.

Mrs. Rogers laughed, now in her usual good spirits. "As if anything is."

She stirred her milkshake rapidly and drained the glass. "I'm going to Florida in a few weeks to get a little sun. You couldn't go because you have a husband to cater to. You have to stay here and freeze. I can go anywhere I like."

Alice got up. "I'll have to go. Harry won't go to sleep till I'm in. Right now he'll be looking at the clock and wondering where I am."

Mrs. Rogers kept the elevator door open at the Norton's floor. "Let's do this another night," she said.

Alice agreed. "If I can, I will."

She stood with the latchkey in her hand before opening her door for a full minute after the elevator had closed and gone on. Her feelings were still curiously churned up after seeing the picture which had mixed her past with her present and seemed now to be reaching out and influencing her future. She opened the door and heard a radio program of dance music going full blast. She went in and there was Harry lying back in his chair, oblivious to the noise, fast asleep. Alice turned off the program and shook him gently to wake him up.

CHANGELESS LOVE

He opened his eyes. "Hello, sweetheart," he said.

Alice flung her arms round him. "Oh darling, darling, I'm so glad I still have you. I love you so. I love you so."

He was wide awake instantly and holding her in his arms.

"Alice, Alice—don't take on so. You were quite right. I should have gone with you. I wasn't mad."

Alice laughed and stood back from him, tears in her eyes. "Look at me, Harry. Only this time really look. Can you remember what I was like when we used to hold hands in the movies watching the Keystone cops? Have I changed?"

He looked happy, amazed and bewildered all at once. "I can't tell. You look the same to me. But I suppose we've both changed." He got up out of the chair and put his arms round her. Alice heard Mrs. Rogers' lonely footsteps cross the room above. Then she heard Harry speaking. "Change doesn't matter, Alice, because one thing never changes. That is true love."

THE END

You'll enjoy "Peaches and Cream," Adeline Scott's delightful short story complete on this page tomorrow. Don't miss it.

'Pinocchio' Stays at Keith's for Third Triumphant Week

Early Showings On Saturday

Walt Disney's second full-length cartoon feature, "Pinocchio," which is even more Disney than "Snow White" and the Seven Dwarfs, is being held over for a third triumphant week at Keith-Memorial. The theater will be open at 4:15 tomorrow to permit several extra early showings.

The production shows amazing improvement over "Snow White" of two years ago in the animation and cartoon photography departments. The animation is so smooth, there is the impression of real persons and settings rather than drawings of cartoon features. Throughout, it is technically perfect.

The newly developed Disney multiple camera, originally but not extensively used in "Snow White," has been used to great effect and provides some of the most ingenious cartoon photography seen. Most arresting effect achieved was seen through the leaping Jiminy Cricket's wide open eyes.

Keith's new second feature, "The Courageous Dr. Christian," presents Jean Hersholt in a role familiar to countless film and radio fans. It is the second of the star's series for RKO Radio release. Supporting players include Dorothy Lovett and Robert Baldwin.

Tenor Shields Boston's Star

Radio's popular tenor, Jimmy Shields, who has a likable personality plus a fine warm voice, is making his Hub stage debut as headliner in the RKO Boston stage show billed through the week-end, "Make Love with a Guitar." "When You Wish Upon a Star" and "All the Things You Are" were the songs which he started the K-B patrons applauding at the first show.

Well applauded, too, were Helene Denison's brilliant ballerina numbers, especially the rainbow and balloon dance and the trims interlude done in true ballet style. An assisting trio do well in tap and adagio waltz numbers.

Medley and Dupree, assisted by a clown-faced stooge, tap the laughs with their medley of fun and song, plus that trick victrola. The Two Zephyrs, Harlem favorites, show their musical rhythm dance and a slow-motion die game. The attractive Four Ambassadors turn on glamour and some fine acrobatics.

On the screen are "The Lone Wolf Strikes" with Walter Williams, and a new Gene Autry western, "Boots and Saddles."

DESPITE warnings of Jiminy Cricket, his official conscience, Pinocchio manages to get into constant trouble, as nearly becoming a donkey, illustrated above. Film will stay a third week at Keith Memorial.

Pinza Triumphs In 'Boris' Role

By LEO GAFFNEY

Ezio Pinza, the Metropolitan Opera Company's most distinguished actor-basso, sang the title role in Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff," last night at the Boston Opera House—and sang it magnificently.

The opera was given in Italian, as it usually is. The late Chaliapin was not unfriendly to the Italian text, either, though he always slipped into Russian for the great Coronation Scene.

"Boris," if you remember, is derived from the poet Pushkin's dramatic story of the Regent who murdered the son of Ivan the Terrible to provide himself with the crown.

But, having gotten away with it nicely, Boris is prey to his guilty conscience. So much so, that when another pretender, passing himself off as the real prince, appears, Boris in an extremity of fear, regards him as a ghost and is driven to madness.

Mr. Pinza was as equal to the dramatic demands as he was vocal, thrilling. The large audience applauded him lustily, particularly at the end of the coronation scene, when the guilty czar magnificently proclaims his own sanctity as thousands cheer.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

NEW YORK, April 5—Gene Raymond who won everyone's admiration by the dignified way he ignored several tactless magazine articles about himself and Jeannette MacDonald, is returning to the movies—and right on his old home lot, RKO.

He'll be co-starred with Wendy Barrie in "Cross Country Romance," and when I saw him here in New York he was very enthused about the yarn which is light and amusing like the romantic comedies he used to do with Ann Sothern.

Gene spent Easter with Jeannette in Springfield and came on to confer with his music publishers about two new songs he has written, but he's leaving for the Coast right away. Frank Woodruff will direct the Raymond-Barrie comedy with Cliff Reid producing.

Nancy Kelly, who almost married Irving Cummings, Jr., last week, will make a movie before she becomes a bride. If I'm not mistaken it will be the first time Nancy has been off the home lot when she goes to Universal for "One of the Boston Buttertons."

Robert Cummings will be her screen beau in this and Roland Young and Hugh Herbert are already set.

I hear that Nancy and Irving, Jr., have promised their parents that they won't make any more false starts toward the altar—and the plan now is for an honest-to-goodness wedding with a veil and orange blossoms.

'Northwest Passage' At Bowdoin, Olympia

"Northwest Passage," the Spencer Tracy starring Technicolor production based on the first half of Kenneth Robert's best-selling novel of the same name, will top the Bowdoin Square and Washington St. Olympia screen bills, starting tomorrow. Robert Young and Walter Brennan are importantly featured.

The Bowdoin's second feature, "Big Guy," co-stars Jackie Cooper and Victor McLaglen. The Washington St. Olympia's companion feature will be "The Saint's Double Trouble," with George Sanders, Bela Lugosi and Helene Whitney.

Father Time Passes Grove By in the Field of Sport

AGE ISN'T ALWAYS A QUESTION OF YEARS, a disintegration of the arteries, a failing of the glands, a collapse of the nerve system. Age is in your enthusiasm, the game you play, the work you do, the opportunities life offers. You may be young at 76 or old at 11! Take Shirley Temple! She's virtually a graying grandma among the infant actresses, though still in the pinafore and pigtail period. Or take Connie Mack, the septuagenarian who rules his Athletics' roost after 50 years in baseball. Or Lefty Grove, the pappy guy of the Red Sox, who is still fairly fresh at 40.

Here is Grove and there is Dizzy Dean, both ex-fire ball throwers. Yet Dizzy, at 29, may have drained his last drop of usefulness, while Grove, at 40, is going on like Tennyson's "Brook."

Nor is Age always a matter of health habits! You remember how Rabbit Maranville flouted every law of hygienics, burned his candle at both ends, met the milk man, roistered and rioted, yet lasted till the ripe old age of 42 and then had to be blasted from the Braves by a broken leg. And remember Joe Sewell, the Yankee infielder who always ate balanced diets, never attended the movies or read fine print lest he injure his batting eye, went to bed at 10 o'clock and yet came asunder at 32?

DIFFERENT SPORTS ACT VARIOUSLY ON different athletes. The average pro fighter is finished at 25, although some, like Jack Britton, won welterweight titles at 37. The surprising Bob Fitzsimmons was 40 when he fought Jim Jeffries.

In hockey a man is ancient at 30, although Eddie Shore is close to 35 and Ching Johnson, King Clancy and Babe Siebert were close to 40 when they quit or died. And in baseball the dangerous age is 36, a point where such famous names as Joe Tinker, Homerun Baker, Rogers Hornsby, Pie Traynor, Hank Gowdy, Charley Gimm, Mickey Cochran, Lou Gehrig, Frank Chance and a host of others passed over their horizon.

Few pitchers stay in top-flight baseball till 40. A few like Tom Man McGinnity and Jack Quinn. Today, for example, there are only two of that age—Ted Lyons and Earl Whitehill of the White Sox. But bear this in mind—Lefty led the American League in runs-allowed, an average of only 2.54 per game. And that makes him a curiosity.

Last month, as he sat in the Sox clubhouse steaming in his green rubber shirt, I asked, "How many more years can you pitch?" and he said, "Till my arm drops off—two, maybe three more years." When the batter began spraying his fork ball and his occasional No. 1 around the scenery, he would walk off and keep on going. "Nobody'll have to tell me," he said, "I'll know!" What then? Would he drift down through the minor leagues? "No," he said, "I'll drift back to Lonaconing 'n' stay there. You won't ever see Lefty in the bushes and you won't ever see Lefty in any of those old timers' games." When he goes he intends to pull down the curtain on the past and stay in his little hill town, hunting with his beagles, scratching in his garden, chatting with his neighbors—nothing more!

WE WHO WRITE THE SAGA OF SPORT HAVE watched them go—Cobb after 23 years, Eddie Collins after 22, Speaker and Maranville and Hans Wagner and Babe Ruth after 20. Some, like Cobb, might have stretched their rubber a little longer, but Ty said, "I want them to remember me at my peak, not as a pathetic old man." And last year when the Boston Veterans of Foreign Wars sponsored an Old Timers game and invited Cobb to play, he wrote, "No! Nothing is more mournful than to see a once-great athlete going through his rheumatic jerks or blubbery stages." The people are going to remember Cobb as he was, not as he is now.

It was a surprise to the scholars of baseball that Babe Ruth lasted as long as he did. For I recall Tris Speaker warning me as far back as 1924 that Babe, with his flamingo legs and paunchy stomach, would not last more than three years more. Yet Babe lasted until 1935, although his most vital year was 1932 when he hit 341.

Grove's longevity is due to a remarkable nervous system! For his invariable habit is to lie down before he pitches a ball game, reclining on the clubhouse rubbing table and falling fast asleep. For a half hour he will slumber quietly, oblivious to the world, then rouse himself grumpily, take his glove and go through the players' tunnel. After

100,000 SEE BOGSKAR TAKE GRAND NATIONAL

AIN'TREE, Eng., April 5 (AP)—Bogskar, a rank outsider, came from nowhere to win the 102d Grand National Steeplechase today. MacMoffat was second and Golden Arrow third. More than 300 steel-helmeted air raid wardens patrolled the course while ambulance and fire apparatus stood by.

Race cards advised spectators to take shelter under the stands or lie down on the turf or in ditches in case of an air raid. Loud-speakers were installed to give emergency advice if needed.

While L. Scott Briggs' MacMoffat, second last year, and Gold Arrow, owned by J. R. Neill, ran with the leaders from the start Bogskar trailed. He closed fast, however, to carry Lord Stalbridge's silks to victory by four lengths. MacMoffat was six lengths in front of Gold Arrow.

100,000 SEE RACE

Bogskar was a 25 to 1 shot in the betting. MacMoffat was held at 8 to 1 by the crowd, estimated at more than 100,000, while Gold Arrow was considered to have no better than a 50 to 1 chance.

Seventeen of the 31 starters completed the 4 miles 856 yards.

Arthur Sainsbury's Symaethis finished fourth. Bogskar carried 144 pounds over the long journey in 9 minutes 20.33 seconds, only one-fifth of a second slower than the record established by Golden Miller in 1934.

Dorothy Paget, grand daughter of the late William C. Whitney, former Secretary of the U. S. Navy, went after her second grand national steeplechase victory in vain as her favored Kilstar led a field of 31 to the post.

They were off 10 minutes earlier than expected.

Rockquill took the lead but soon gave way to the highly regarded Royal Daniell, who showed the way over Beechers brook the first time.

FIELD SPREADS OUT

Dunhill Castle also dropped out early, as did John Hay Whitney's National Hunt, one of the two American-owned horses.

The leaders the first time around the course were MacMoffat, Royal Daniell and Gold Arrow, a rank outsider.

More than 20 of the field completed the first round, but Under Bid fell soon after the start of the second round.

The leaders the second time over Beechers Brook were Royal Daniell and Gold Arrow, with MacMoffat in third place.

Reds' Strategy Of Six Forwards Pays Dividends

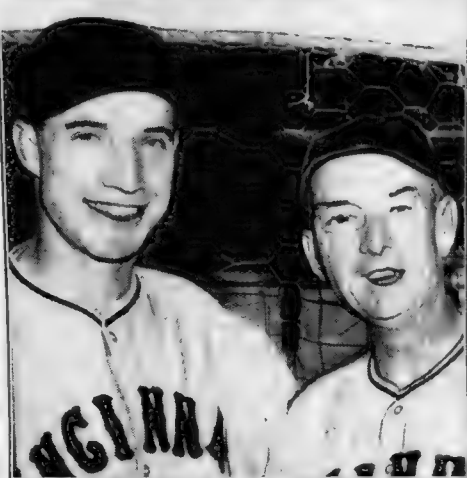

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 5 (AP)—Probably the most exciting playoff series the International American Hockey League has seen prepared today to shift its scenery with the Providence Reds leading the Pittsburgh Hornets 2 to 0.

It took the Reds two overtime periods last night to capture their second victory 4-3, but the important fact is that they did get it. For most of the regular period the Reds were outplayed, but in true movie fashion Hub Wilson came through with a goal to tie the score in the last 30 seconds of the game and then 12 minutes and 46 seconds along in the second overtime period John (Red) Dorn took a pass and banged it into the nets for the winning goal.

The Reds had been forced to remove Goalie Mike Karakas from the ice in the final minute of the regular period and field six forwards, but the desperate maneuver paid off.

Weather Upsets Plans Of McKechnie's Reds

By HERB FINNEGAN

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 5.—Bill McKechnie is quite perturbed over his Cincinnati National League champions as they swing north with the Red Sox preparatory to the opening of the championship season.

This is the worst season he has spent in Florida, and things aren't panning out so well as he had figured.

Only one of his pitchers is in top form—wiry Bucky Walters, who won 27 games last season and was voted the most valuable player in the National League.

Paul Derringer, 25-game winner, was taken ill in Cuba when the Reds went over there a few weeks ago and is just beginning to feel himself again.

WEATHER DANGER GRAVE

If the weather is not what it should be from here in, however, Paul will start the campaign below standard.

TITLE JINX DUE FOR FALL IN PIN TOURNNEY 49

Fitchburg Champion Repeats Score That Won Crown in 1939

A jinx which has pursued every former champion in the history of the American-Record-Advertiser New England Bowling Championship classics appears to have finally been broken.

Dorothy Yando, Fitchburg High school girl, has apparently ended the hex which stopp'd every champion from successfully defending his or her title on following years.

ROLLED SAME SCORE
Last year this young lady took the girls' singles with a three string total of 233. Strangely enough she came right back and repeated that identical score, which from all indications, will be large enough to enable her to win a diamond studded medal, and an Elgin wrist watch in addition to retaining her title.

If Dorothy's mark can stand up through today she has an excellent chance of coasting home the winner.

Today's entry group is about the largest the tournament has ever had for one day bowling.

EVERY ALLEY BOOKED
Every alley available has been booked solid for tonight, and there will be plenty of activity this afternoon.

In addition to the participants, scores of keepers are expected to show up and just get under the line with post entries which close tonight.

With the bowlers entered, the spectators and the folks who are going to register all converging on the Huntington Club tonight even this spacious floor which houses 66 alleys may have to close its doors.

ONE WEEK REMAINS
After today's battling there will be just one week remaining before the champions are determined and the prizes awarded.

And what a prize list there is available for the amateur classes. Just hitting the highlights we find 22 diamond studded medals, 22 gold medals, 22 silver medals, 100 bronze medals, 11 Elgin wrist watches, two beautiful trophies, two suits of clothes and two smartly styled spring frocks.

Here is still more news. From the scores which have been turned in during the first week, almost every class is still wide open.

The lead has changed hands in the pinboys' singles—Tony DeVincent of Medford hit a high of 323 to take the lead . . . oddly enough George Ramsey, a neighbor from Medford, clicked for 320 to put him in second place right behind George.

Manager Frank Fallon is taking the title for being the best dressed man in the tourney away from Dick Jones, chief assistant to Jack Stafford, director of the championship . . . there seems to be a contest daily as to who will win honors for sartorial splendor—Fallon is one candidate tip.

The open division found the Brentwood five of Waltham going into the lead in the men's teams . . . they hit 1572 with Ray Bernard being high man with a 139 total due largely to a brilliant last string of 126 . . . oddly enough the Brentwood Juniors took the amateur team leadership over with a 1519 high.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 5 (AP)—The semifinals of the Charlotte Country Club's women's initiation tournament today sent newcomers to the golfing world against experienced linkswomen.
The 17-year-old Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D., had as her opponent medalist Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., a veteran of southern tournaments. A University of South Carolina sophomore, Jane Crum, met the defending champion, Jane Colburn of Greenville, S. C., in the other match.

Miss Bauer came through the quarter finals yesterday with a 2 and 1 win over Betty Abnerthy of Oakmont, Pa. Miss Colburn also won 2 and 1, eliminating Mrs. Tom Nolan of New Castle, Pa. Miss Tainter chafed out a 1 up victory over Deborah Verry of Worcester, Mass., 1938 champion. Miss Crum beat Mrs. Ben T. Parks of Charlotte, 2 and 1.

PORTER ENTERS B. A. A. RUN

A Who's Who in Marathoning began to take form today in the Boston Athletic Association books for the April 19 Hopkinton to Boston gallop.

Some 35 entries were received this morning, swelling the list to 55 for the blue ribbon event of the world's road racing.

Mer Porter of the Millrose Club and Leo Giard of North Randolph both capable of winning, judging by past showings, headed today's list. The number of entries begins to make it look as though the race will be bigger than ever, despite the lack of Olympic games Marathon incentive.

ENTRIES CLOSE APRIL 12

The official closing date for entries is one week from today, Friday, April 12, and Tom Kanaly urges all runners contemplating taking part to get their signed blanks in on time. The B. A. A. committee does not want to bar any runner from competing, but are insisting this year that all entries must be in on the date of closing.

Fifteen entries were announced today bringing the total to 55. In comparison with other years, when the total list ran to over 200, this is beginning to look like a record-breaker. The largest number of entries in any B. A. A. Marathon since its inception was in 1923 when a total of 236 were recorded.

RAN 4TH IN '39

The entries today are Walter H. Childs, Springfield; Leo O. Giard, North Randolph, 10th in 1937 and 4th in 1938; Anthony DeRosa St. Leonard's H. N. S., Boston; Mark Danton, Jeanette, Pa.; Mer Porter, Millrose A. A., New York, 4th in 1938, 16th in 1937 and 3d in 1936, and Eugene Hickey, Malden. Also Raymond P. White, Medway; Joe White, No. Medford Club; Johnny DeGloria, Mercury Club, Albany, N. Y.; William Paavo Wicklund, Millrose A. A., New York; Jack Wahlberg, Royal Rovers, Verdun, P. Q., Can.; Eugene Dyer, Dorchester; Thomas W. Maskell, Royal Rovers, Verdun, P. Q. Can. 33d last year, and Francis Reddy of Pittsfield.

All entries must be filed with Tom Kanaly, Boston Garden, Boston, on or before midnight, April 12.

STORACE LONE TITLE DEFENDER

Montana Sends Eight Boxers to Nationals

A 1939 national amateur ring king flipped his hat into the ring today for the 1940 title bouts at the Garden on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. He is Cozey Storace of Rome, N. Y., and he'll be back with the Adirondack district team, and he sends word he'll make a terrific bid to retain his crown.

Storace is the sole champion to enter thus far but whether he'll be able to retain his throne is a moot question, says Tourney Director Tom Kanaly says the field is the finest in the nationals in a decade. Storace and his compatriots from the northeastern sector of the land of the free are going to have a tough three days. Amateur champions from the northwest southwest and the far south will play prominent roles in this year's championships.

PRIEST BRINGS TEAM

The state championships of Montana have just been completed at Great Falls under the sponsorship of the Catholic Youth Council, and the following battlers are now en route to Boston under the direction of Rev. Eugene V. Cergen of Great Falls:

Vic Sargent, flyweight, hails from Chinook, Montana. He is a rugged little battler with plenty of stamina, and in his two years of ring warfare has lost but two battles.

LOST ONLY FOUR

The 113 pounder is George Kessler, representing the Catholic Youth Council of Great Falls. George has been fighting 3 years and has lost but 4 out of 70 contests.

Another C. Y. C. standard bearer from Great Falls, Harry Hunter, will toss leather in the 125 pounds class. Harry is the oldest and most experienced member of the Montana team. He has had 80 amateur battles and has lost only 11.

Veal Sherman, C. Y. C. youngster from Great Falls is the 135 pound entry. He was the 1939 featherweight state champion, and has a record of 13 straight wins.

Emmett Murphy of the Great Falls C. Y. C. is the only defending champion of the Montana tournament, winning the 147-pound title for the second straight year. In his three years of fighting he has lost but two bouts in competition.

John Ingraham, the middleweight, comes from Ronan. He is a clever, rangy boxer, with a strong resemblance to Billy Conn.

Leo Bens, Jr., a 21-year-old Butte, Montana, miner with a healthy wallop, will battle in the light heavyweight division. Only one of his opponents has been able to stay three rounds with him this year. He has cleaned up all other opposition in one round.

Hatlo PRO GOLF NOW GRIND FOR STARS

By LESTER RICE

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 5 (INS)—Lloyd Mangrum had only minutes before establishing a new record of 64 for the Augusta national links when a tidy reporter asked for his whereabouts.

"Anybody see Mangrum?" he inquired.

"I do not know where he is," Walter Hagen volunteered, "but you will probably find him out back practicing."

What Walter said was not exactly true since the slender 143-pound Texan of the wispy mustache at the moment was posing for the cameras. The Haig in his facetious way was merely jibing at the methods of the modern professionals today.

LOW SCORING FORMULA

Practice, practice and more practice. That seems to be the formula for the trend of low scoring. No sooner has a present day professional completed his tournament round than he is off somewhere to iron out a kink or two in his swing.

As soon as Jimmy Demaret had concluded his spectacular 67 which gave him temporary leadership yesterday he was on the practice grounds hitting those shots which had not come off exactly as he had intended. For two long hours he hit shot after shot until sheer weariness forced him to quit.

Demaret had gone out in 37 with two three-putt greens and had returned in 39, six under the prescription for the back nine. That is the lowest ever made in the seven years of the masters tournament, set tongues wagging and made people say that the big Texas wind which had borne the smiling Jimmy through five winter tournaments successfully, was on the rise again.

Leap Year Proposal to a finicky man...

We like those men who are fussy over their beer—they know what they want. Well, here's a challenge: Try a Malt Beer, Trommer's White Label, and discover how superior is this beer, brewed solely of Hops, and Barley-Malt, but no other grain! It's import-style beer, costlier to brew—but you pay only an American price for it. Notice how many more places are serving it?

Today, say "make mine White Label," then Taste . . . and Compare!

This beer is made solely from hops and barley-malt and no other grain and is therefore a "malt" beer. This is the way fine imported beers are brewed. It is the distinction which, in popular opinion, sets Trommer's apart as a more palatable and thoroughly satisfying brew.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

THE 15-ROUND bout between Hammering Henry Armstrong and Paul Junior for the welterweight championship of the world at the Garden on April 26 marks the return of big-time boxing to Boston.

This contest will decide whether Boston is still able to compete with other major cities in the matter of attendances at title ring contests. If it proves it is, Lou Ambers, lightweight champion; Ceferino Garcia, middleweight boss, and Billy Conn, light heavyweight champion, may be persuaded to risk their championships in local rings.

The Garden has been scaled so that it can draw $32,000. This is with a $3.30 top, which is enough to charge for any ring contest. In the boom days of Boston boxing, the Maloney-Carnera match was offered at $11 for ringside pews, while the Sharkey-Maloney and Maloney-Heeney tussles got $5.50 for the best seats. I do not believe such high prices would be warranted under present economic conditions.

One reason the recent playoff series between the Rangers and Bruins drew so well was because the highest priced seats sold for only $2.50.

The recent $16.50 sock for ringside seats at the Louis-Paychek fiasco added to the general dissatisfaction concerning that bout.

ARMSTRONG HAS completely recovered from the injuries he received in his ten-round draw in Los Angeles with Ceferino Garcia. Armstrong and Garcia forgot all about scientific boxing as they punched it out in one of the most thrilling ring contests ever witnessed in California.

Armstrong won the welterweight title from Barney Ross, and has succeeded in defending it successfully against all-comers. Hammering Henry tosses more punches in a minute than any boxer before the public today. The welterweight boss is perpetual motion once the gong sounds for the opening round until the tussle ends.

Eddie Mead will come to Boston with Armstrong. It was Mead who induced Al Jolson to purchase Armstrong's contract when the latter was boxing for pork chop and beans money on the Coast. Mead piloted Armstrong to three world's championships, the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight crowns, and then bought out Jolson's interest in Hammering Henry.

Mead is one of the old-line managers. He first attracted national prominence when he piloted Joe Lynch of New York, who won the world's bantamweight championship. Lynch, while under the Mead management, tossed leather in a Boston ring.

It was due to an old friendship here with "Rip" Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. that Mead agreed to permit Armstrong to risk his title against Paul Junior.

Paul Junior's most important Boston bouts were against Lou Ambers, who defeated him twice in hard contests. Since the Ambers tussle Paul Junior has knocked out Honey Melody and disposed of other first-class opposition. The Maine welterweight may be relied upon to give Armstrong a real ring test.

WHEN NATE LEWIS was in Boston with Al Rodak he expressed the opinion that boxing would regain its former popularity here if the fans were offered the right kind of attractions.

"Boston should be one of the best boxing towns in the country," said Nate. "Back in the days when I came here with Charley White and Jack Malone, Boston drew large crowds at ring contests. The people in this city were educated to high-class boxing, and they turned from the game when the promoters were able to offer only mediocre matches."

"Now that boxing is coming back in all sections of the country Boston is sure to take its place in the front ranks of the fistic parade." The Armstrong-Paul Junior bout should give the answer as to whether the town wants top professional boxing. I think it does.

JIMMY DYSON, veteran trainer, will help care for the Pacific Coast boxers when they arrive here to finish training for their appearances in the national amateur boxing championships at the Garden on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week . . . Dyson should be of considerable assistance to the visiting mitt wielders.

The Hawaiian boxers, working daily at Kelley & Hayes' gym for the nationals, have impressed those persons who have seen them in action . . . With amateur boxing booming in all parts of the United States, this year's nationals are expected to set a new high for stirring competition.

8 MORE FOR WILSON!

Dave "King" Wilson had another sweep of victories yesterday when he picked eight winners, three at Bowie and five at Tropical Park.

New England's leading handicapper had Cleo Louise, $7.00 straight; Pictor, $3.50, and The Queen $7.50, all on top at the Maryland strip.

Down in Florida, Dave swept through the card with a quintet of winners. Dutch Courage, $13.10, snagged the first race on the program. Sweet Sukey, $4.20; Many Stings, $3.40; Felsun, $5.10, and Colonel Joe, $6.60, all romped home in front to give Wilson five top choices to click at Tropical Park.

A $2.00 win wager on every Wilson horse at both ovals would have netted a $30.40 profit for the day's wagering.

King David has been on a sensational winning streak the past week. His graded handicaps at Bowie and Tropical Park appear daily in the Boston Evening American.

Wilson's "bird cage" selections are found ONLY in the Race Special Edition of the Boston Evening American. Join the Wilson bandwagon of winners!

Rangers Arrive in Toronto

TORONTO, April 5 (AP)—The New York Rangers, only two victories away from hockey's Stanley Cup and hungry for the kill, arrived here today to complete the National Hockey League's final playoff series.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, their tottering adversaries, returned from New York yesterday, vowing grimly that they would assert themselves on home ice Saturday night. But there was no question that even though all the remaining games, five if necessary, will be played on the Leafs' own rink, the advantage was all with the Blue Shirts.

The style in which Lester Patrick's crew took the first two encounters, 2-1 and 6-2, as much as the results themselves made the New Yorkers' favorites.

They exerted the pressure from start to finish in both games, playing sound, hard hockey. Patrick will have no worries about lineup changes or systems. But Coach Dick Irvin of the Leafs admitted to all of these.

Reds' Prospects Worry Leader

the pre-season activities has been the pitching of ancient Jim Turner, who won 20 games for McKechnie when Bill was managing the Bees three years ago.

Bill had counted upon Turner as his No. 3 pitcher, ranking next to Derringer and Walters, but Jim has not shown enough to warrant his retention on the club.

He was flogged by the Red Sox as far back as Sunday, March 10, but Bill strung along with him.

"He never was spring pitcher," philosophized the Deacon, and started him in several other games.

But last week, when Bucky Walters handed Jim an 8-1 lead in the sixth inning and Jim lost the ball game to the Giants, 10-8, McKechnie finally announced that Jim would do no other pitching except in batting practice until, if ever, he regained his form.

So he is grooming Junior Thompson and Whitey Moore for regular duty along with Derringer and Walters, and Moore's control isn't what it should be.

HOPE FOR VANDER MEE

One bright spot in the Reds picture is Johnny Vander Meer. When the no-hit kid pitched against the Red Sox in Sarasota a few weeks ago, he was pounded all over the lot.

"Didn't make a thing," said the Sox who hit against him. There were reports that Vandy would be sent back to Syracuse. But Bill denied these vehemently.

"He's faster than he was two years ago," said Bill this morning, "and he's finally convinced there is nothing wrong with him. I think he'll do all right from now on."

Vandy may pull up some of the slack caused by the Turner flop, and McKechnie expects further help from Joe Eggs, obtained from the Yanks in the Grissom waiver trade, and Elmer Riddi, brother of Catcher Johnny, who used to be with the Bees.

INFIELD ALL SET

His infield is set with the veterans McCormick, Frey, Myers and Werber, and Mike McCormick and Vince DiMaggio will split for the time being, at least. Wally Berger's left field job. Harry Craft and Ival Goodman are set in the other posts. Goodman's injured wing being O. K. again.

The club's mental attitude is not just what Bill would have it. The boys are champions, and seem content at times to rest on their laurels, and Bill is trying to put spurs to them.

The Reds got away to a fine start a year ago, and that's what saved them in the dying days of the race, and Bill fears a slow start will be fatal this year with the Cards, Dodgers, Pirates and particularly the Giants showing pennant notions.

Bill is high on the Giants. "Witek's a good, steady second baseman," said Bill, "and when Terry shifted Whitehead to third base he really made himself an infield. And that Danning! Boy, he's the class as a catcher."

"Now it's all up to Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher. If they come around, and it looks as if they will, we're going to have a hard time repeating. But we should, nevertheless, if we get squared away early enough."

Marty Brill Signs As Loyola Coach

LOS ANGELES, April 5 (INS)—Marty Brill, All-American halfback for Notre Dame in 1930, will guide the denizens of the Loyola College of Los Angeles grid team in 1940, the athletic board of control announced today.

Terms or length of the contract were not divulged. Brill has been head coach of La Salle College in Philadelphia for the last seven years.

Idaho Qualifies Five For Title Fights

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 5 (AP)—University of Idaho sprung a squad of handy fisted young men in the preliminaries of the National Collegiate A. A. boxing championships to set the pace for team honors today in the 1940 renewal of the country's biggest collegiate ring tournament.

The Vandals brought five men through yesterday's afternoon and night bouts.

Paul Waner Mystery Man of Baseball

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—On April 16, Paul Glee Waner, known affectionately to his ball intimates as "Rat," will celebrate his 37th birthday and open his 15th campaign in the outfield of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Paul, the rugged little individualist, deserved a hand. In a sport largely dominated these days by sober young men cut to a pattern, who mind the boss and bank their money, Waner has continued to go his merry, irresponsible way, while setting a lifetime record for brilliance unmatched in the National League today.

Over 14 full seasons the 155-pound marvel from Harrah, Okla., has set a phenomenal batting average of .342. Only one player in the league, husky Johnny Mize of St. Louis, can top that mark. Mize has an average of .346, but only for three seasons, while Joe Medwick, the next closest rival to Waner, has pounded .333 over an eight-year span.

COMPARED WITH OTT

Perhaps it is necessary to look up Mel Ott's lifelong mark to realize the full measure of Waner's greatness. The Giants' star has played the same number of years as Paul, 14, despite the fact he is some five years younger, and is considered something of a marvel, himself.

Well, Ott has it over Waner only in one department—home runs—and Mel has had that freshish right field stand in the Polo Grounds to shoot at for all of his baseball life. Otherwise, Waner leads him in total runs, hits, doubles, triples, total bases, sacrifices and stolen bases. Paul leads all the other players in the league in each of these departments, too.

Three times the little guy has led the National League in hitting, with averages of .380, .362 and .373. There is no telling how many times he might have won the honor if he ever had seriously disciplined himself and given it the old college try every day all season.

For Paul has had a lot of fun all the way. Wiry as a buckskin and nearly as unpredictable in his personal habits, he has pretty much made his own training rules. It is a mystery to most of his comrades how he managed to sustain his brilliance. Incidentally, he also leads Ott in lifetime fielding.

TAKES PLENTY EXERCISE

"I'll tell you how I've done it," he said one night down South early this spring. "A little feller like me has to do something to stay even with all those big fellers, so I've done it by playin' golf and huntin' all season."

games, in the privacy of his room, he takes a half tumbler of bourbon —his only dissipation—spending the rest of the evening with a paperback novel and turning in at ten o'clock.

THE REST OF THE RED SOX ARE comparatively young and, should they win a pennant, their reign may be long. Joe Cronin and Roger Cramer are 34, Jimmy Fox is 33, Gene Desautels is 33. The rest are youngsters, Bobby Doerr 22, Jim Tabor 24, Ted Williams 23, Dom DiMaggio 23, Jack Wilson 23, Jim Bagby 24, Mickey Harris 23 and so on. They're still a long way from the dangerous age. But few, if any, will be around when they reach Lefty's span of years. Lefty is a law unto himself!

CRONIN GAMBLES ON JINXING HARRIS

By the Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 5—George Caster seems to have earned for himself the honor of hurling for the Philadelphia Athletics in the opening game against the New York Yankees, April 16.

He topped off previous good efforts by twirling six scoreless innings against Fort Worth's Texas Leaguers.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Schoolboy Rowe was ready to try nine innings against the Brooklyn Dodgers today with a place among the Detroit Tigers, starting pitchers as a possible reward for a good performance. So far this spring Rowe has looked promising.

GREENSBORO, N. C.—Lefty Mickey Harris, cocky youngster from the sidewalks of New York and pitching find of the Boston Red Sox training season; was to try to go the route today against the Reds. Manager Joe Cronin has been afraid he would jinx the youngster if he praised him, but a good showing against the National League champions would probably be all the youngster would want.

AMARILLO, Tex.—The Pirates came to town today with a record of winning 11 of their last 13 games, but not proud of their latest triumph. In beating the White Sox 10-9 the Buccos issued nine bases on balls, made six errors.

CORDELE, Ga.—Lou Roudreau, whose ankle bone was chipped a couple of weeks ago, probably will break into the Cleveland lineup again next week. He had an arduous workout in the infield drill before the Tribe beat the Giants.

GREENSBORO, N. C.—Manager Bill McKechnie has an idea on how he could solve his left field problem, but it involves Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox. After watching the lean slugger day after day in the club's touring series, McKechnie commented wryly:

"The Reds could win the pennant by 20 games if we had that kid."

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Larry MacPhail has quietly deserted the Dodgers again and is hunting another starting pitcher. The failure of Whitlow Wyatt's knee to loosen up has left the Dodgers with only three hurriers regarded as dependable starters—Luke Hamlin, Hugh Casey and Tex Carleton.

AMARILLO, Tex.—Observers who have been predicting Rookie Bob Kennedy would be at third base for the White Sox didn't have to back up when veteran Eric McNair took over at the hot corner against the Pirates. McNair, sidelined several weeks with a lame arm, made two bad throws.

CORDELE, Ga.—Zeke Bonura's status with the New York Giants is still unchanged. Although out of the good graces of Manager Bill Terry, he continues to look nifty around first base and holds his place among the club's leading hit-

TARZAN IN BRIGHTON ROAD RACE

Tarzan Brown, Westerly R. I. Indian, will try to retain his presentation road race championship tomorrow afternoon against a field of 100 marathoners, who will toe the mark for the annual Brighton grind.

Last year Brown captured this run and then went on to establish a new record in the Patriot's Day B. A. A. Marathon.

In this handicap event Brown will be started from scratch. Leslie Pawson, three-time winner of the time prize, and Gerard Cole, St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, co-favorites with Brown, will also watch the field get underway before starting off in the chase.

ters. He got one of six blows administered by Bob Feller yesterday.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—The Cubs are more than satisfied at this stage of training with Outfielder Dominic D'Allesandro, whom they have dubbed "Lefthand Hitting Hack Wilson." Prior to today's game with the St. Louis Browns, the rookie was batting .351, had not fanned in any of 19 games and had waited out 15 bases on balls.

ATLANTA, Ga.—The Senators have been in a hitting slump, but they expect to make the most out of the hits they do get. Their followers contend no team in the American League has faster base runners than George Case, Gerry Walker, Jim Waddell and Buddy Lewis.

MOBILE, Ala.—Don Padgett is sold on his assignment as catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, but admits, "a year ago I wasn't." His only worry is that his legs get tired from crouching and along about the fifth inning he begins to feel weak.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Manager Fred Haney hopes his lineup against the Chicago Cubs does well—it's the strongest the St. Louis Browns can field opening day; Bob Swift, c; George McQuinn, 1b; Don Heffner, 2b; Harland Clift, 3b; Alan Strange, ss; Joe Gallagher or Chet Laabs, lf; Walt Judnich, rf; Rip Radcliffe or Myron Hong, cf. Pitchers—Ah, that's the problem—it's Vernon Kennedy today.

Census Headache—Tabulator Lawrence E. Goeckel ran into a tough assignment when he queried Mr. and Mrs. Dan Buss of Blue Island, Ill., on family matters

... he found 14 children at home (you see them ranged above) and Grandma Buss and another son absent. If he'd called a month later he'd found another child ... Mrs. Buss, 40, is expecting again.
